

U.N. opens assembly

$1.2 billion UW budget asked

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — An escalating crisis in the Middle East, Chinese and Soviet demands for the withdrawal of U.S. troops from Korea, and a bitter debate on terrorism confront delegates from 132 member states as they meet today for the opening of the 27th U.N. General Assembly.

Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko heads a high-powered Soviet delegation. He is the first of the Big Five foreign affairs chiefs to arrive for the 13-week parley, which 73 foreign ministers are expected to attend.

U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers, Sir Alec Douglas-Home, the British foreign secretary, French Foreign Minister M. Maurice Schumann and the Chinese foreign affairs vice minister, Chiao Kuan-hua are scheduled to arrive in the next few days.

The critical assembly session convenes under the tightest security precautions since the 1970 special heads of state meeting to commemorate the United Nations' 25th anniversary.

As on that occasion, a force of federal Executive Protective Service agents has been sent in from Washington. President Nixon ordered 40 to New York to guard the U.N. missions of 18 Arab countries, Israel and the West German observer following the Munich killing of 11 Israeli Olympic squad members.

The session also meets in the lengthening shadow of a Middle East crisis which observers say has set back chances of a negotiated peace agreement several years.

A perennial item on the assembly agenda, the Middle East problem this year is compounded by Israeli retaliation for the Munich terror attack.

Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim on Monday condemned the weekend Israeli incursion into Lebanon, declaring "such acts of violence" were not helpful to solving the crisis by peaceful means.

Waldheim has proposed that the assembly consider "measures to prevent terrorism and other forms of violence," thus possibly assuring the most acrimonious Mideast debate for years.

MADISON — Calling for a 25 per cent state tax spending increase, University of Wisconsin System officials Monday unveiled a proposed budget of $1.2 billion for the coming two years.

While campus by campus figures will not be available until later this week, administrators outlined for regents an overall budget structure that calls for $1.182 billion in spending by the system for the 1973-75 biennium.

The sum, a jump from $1.028 billion for the current two-year period, comes on top of a $21.6 million spending cut-back ordered by Gov. Patrick J. Lucey before administrators started to build the new budget request.

System officials contended that the "barebones budget" calls for an increase of only 15 per cent in overall spending and a 20 per cent state tax spending hike, but including the

Lucey-ordered cutbacks in the calculations produces an overall spending increase of almost 17 per cent and a state tax spending jump of almost 25 per cent.

State tax fund spending would increase a total of $103.2 million, under the administration's claim — or $124.6 million, under total spending computations — for the 1973-75 systemwide request. The new state tax spending total, if the full request gains approval from the regents later this week, would be $804.7 million for the next two years.

"We are cutting this budget," said President John C. Weaver in presenting it to the regents, "...to what I think is an irreducible minimum that cannot be cut without hurting higher education."

Terming the budget "prudent, realistic and fair," Weaver warned that "there is no padding for further cutting in this budget."

The spending requests represent "an honest minimum at the outset," he said, as faculty representatives immediately protested a proposed 6 per cent salary hike built into the budget.

Proposing a 6 per cent hike to "professional" faculty members is an insult, said Prof. Anatole Beck of the UW-Madison mathematics department. Prof. Edward Musik of UW-Eau Claire, representing the system faculty association, pushed for raises ranging from 9.5 per cent to 11.9 per cent.

Regent Milton Neshek of Elkhorn pointed out that the 6 per cent hike proposed by the administration totals about $36 million for the next two years and equals a gross increase of 18 per cent during the biennium because of the cumulative nature of the hike during the two-year period.

The budget, in outline form, contains requests for:

— $804.7 in state tax money, up $103.2 million, not counting the forced cut-backs imposed by Lucey.

— $152.7 million in student fees, up $19.2 million, or 14 per cent.

— $184.8 million in federal funding, a hike of $9.2 million or 5 per cent.

— $238.0 million in other receipts, such as hospital fees, representing a $20.2 million increase or a 10 per cent jump.

Fixed costs, such as funding and caring for new facilities covering salary increases owed civil servants, and meeting other set salary boosts due during the next two years will cost $73.5 million — or about half of the total increase asked, system officials told the regents.

Israeli diplomat killed by bomb

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An Israeli diplomat in London was killed and another wounded today by a bomb delivered in a package, and an American military attache was reported arrested in Syria.

The British Foreign Office identified the diplomat killed in the blast as an agricultural attache Dr. Ami Shachori, 44. The injured man was identified as Shachori's successor, Kaddar Theodor.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohamed Hassan el-Zayyat, visiting in London, announced his regret at the bombing.

In a statement Zayyat said: "I am sorry to hear this news."

"The sorrow inflicted on the family of the late agricultural counsellor at the Israeli Embassy is a human sorrow with which we sympathize. It is the same sorrow as inflicted upon the victims of the Lebanon raids last week as well

"These all are the bitter fruits of the policy of violence to which our area has been subjected since 1948," the statement said, referring to the founding of Israeli in 1948.

Britain's foreign secretary, Sir Alec Douglas-Home messaged Foreign Minister Abba Eban of Israel his "disgust" at the incident.

"We are disgusted at the underhanded act of terrorism," the British foreign secretary said in his message.

A Foreign Office spokesman said police reports disclosed the package had been mailed to the embassy from Amsterdam. It was not immediately

Senate okays 'Samaritan' bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has approved legislation to compensate victims of crime and the "good Samaritans" who go to their rescue.

The amendment was attached to an omnibus crime bill which passed the Senate by a 74-0 vote Monday. The bill also would make it a federal crime to kill a policeman or fireman.

The bill now goes to a SenateHouse conference to resolve differences.

Arguing for adoption of his proposal, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said government for too long has neglected the victims of violent crimes and others injured while trying to aid them.

In an unusual parliamentary tactic, Mansfield's $15-million plan was passed twice—the first time on its merits and the second time attached to the House-passed omnibus crime measure.

Mansfield said he hoped by this maneuver to get his proposed compensation bill before House-Senate conferees for possible passage this Congress. The House has taken no action on the compensation plan.

The bill would pay victims for medical and burial expenses, loss of earnings and support, therapeutic costs and child-care expenses to enable one parent to work. Victims would not be repaid for property losses but intervenors—the so-called good Samaritans—would be.

To qualify, losses of at least $100 would have to be incurred. Compensation would be limited to $50,000.

The administration reportedly opposes the bill as being premature.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., said it would further burden the taxpayer who he said "is innocent in this, too."

Another amendment to the omnibus crime package would make it a federal crime to kill, injure or assault a policeman, fireman or judicial officer because of his official position.

The vote was 46 to 23 in favor of the proposal by Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa.

Another provision would establish a federally subsidized group-life insurance plan for state and local policemen, firemen and other public-safety officers. The cost was put at $22 million annually.

Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., also won passage of an amendment to extend until June 30, 1974, the Omnibus Crime Control Act of 1968, at an estimated cost of $1.74 billion for the extra year.

As passed by the House, the omnibus bill requires states to offer criminal offenders treatment for narcotics addiction and alcoholism in order to qualify for federal funds from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

Palmby denies prior word on grain sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former assistant secretary of agriculture in the Nixon administration, now a major figure in a congressional probe into wheat sales to Russia, said today he took no inside information to his new job in the grain trade.

Clarence D. Palmby, vice president of Continental Grain Co., N.Y., also told a House Agriculture subcommittee no agreement with the Soviet Union was reached last April when he participated in negotiations in Moscow.

"I am referring particularly to the statements that an agreement had been reached in Moscow with the Soviets in April of 1972," Palmby said.

"Any such statement is an outright lie," he said.

Palmby resigned from his department post last June 7, a month before the White House announced a three-year credit arrangement for selling grain to the Soviet Union. It later developed the Russians wanted huge amounts of wheat, purchases which led to higher farm prices for the grain and allegations that some grain traders profited from inside information.

"Still other statements have been made that I somehow or other had prior knowledge of the Soviet's intention to purchase grain from the U.S., and promptly carried that information to my new employer," Palmby said. "This also is an outright lie."

Palmby said Continental first heard of a Soviet grain buying team being in the United States on June 29 from officials of Exportkhleb, the Soviet state trading organization responsible for grain imports.

A meeting was set up the next day in Washington between the Soviet Union and a company official.

"It was at this meeting on June 30 that Continental first learned of the interest on the part of the Soviet Union in purchasing grains," Palmby said. The Soviet Union asked Continental to submit offers on July 3.

"The total quantity of wheat we sold to Exportkhleb on July 5 was four million tons (about 150 million bushels) subsequently increased by another one million tons, to a total of five million tons (about 188 million bushels) by July 11, when definitive contracts were signed by the parties," Palmby said.

In addition to those initial wheat sales, Continental sold about four and one-half million tons of feed grains to the Soviet Union, he said.

Americans held in Uganda

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eight or nine Americans and about 50 British nationals were reported detained today in Uganda on grounds that the country "is in a war situation" with forces invading from Tanzania.

A diplomatic source in London said

the Americans being held in Kampala during Ugandan-Tanzanian fighting are Peace Corps workers, missionaries, and an Associated Press correspondent. The Britons detained include at least 10 newsmen.

Foreign Minister Wanume Kibedi told British High Commissioner Richard Slater in Kampala on Monday night the Britons are being held because of the fighting.

About 80 Europeans have been detained in Kampala after being unable to furnish proof of their identities. Diplomatic sources said 12 were released Monday and that all had been well-treated.

Several West German journalists have also been detained.

Uganda reported the invading forces have been routed in two days of fighting and were retreating to the border.

A Tanzanian government spokesman in Dar es Salaam said the Ugandans made another air attack on Bukoba in northern Tanzania early today. No details were available.

The spokesman added that in a Monday attack on Bukoba nine persons, including three schoolgirls and a Roman Catholic nun, were killed while 20 others were seriously injured.

Radio Uganda has suggested that the invasion is being backed from a guerrilla base near Bukoba, 30 miles south of the Uganda border.

The latest official news of the military situation in Uganda's southwest broadcast Monday said the invaders had been dislodged from five towns they had occupied, and were retreating toward the border.

Wisconsin lags in growth of per capita income

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Figures issued by the U.S. Commerce Department show Wisconsin's per capita personal income last year dropped from 24th to 27th among the states, the Public Expenditure Survey says.

The survey, a private research agency, said the figures modify a report in April that Wisconsin's personal income was 23rd.

The group said a study by the Commerce Department shows the national average on personal income rose from $3,933 to $4,156 in 1971.

Wisconsin's personal income average also rose, from $3,712 to $3,912, it said.

But Wisconsin's per capita average dropped from 94.3 per cent of the national average to 91.1 per cent, the group said.

Personal income averages last year in nearby states, the group said, were $4,775 in Illinois, $4,027 in Indiana, $4,430 in Michigan, $4,032 in Minnesota, and $3,877 in Iowa.

Hearing starts on air crash

NEENAH — Eyewitness accounts of the June 29 midair collision of two airliners over Lake Winnebago were provided this morning by a Neenah boy and a rural Menasha housewife.

They were the first of 13 witnesses scheduled to testify at a two-day hearing called by the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) to determine the probable cause of the Air Wisconsin-North Central Airlines crash that killed 13 passengers and crewmen.

William R. Haley, NTSB member and chairman of the board of inquiry told a packed hearing room at the Ramada Inn that while the investigation will concern primarily operational aspects of the flight, emphasis also will be placed on data that can be used to prevent further midair collisions.

"The safety board notes the continued occurrences of in-flight collisions and the frequent reports of maneuvers required to avoid others," Haley remarked.

Avoidance factors

"Accordingly, the board proposed to also inquire into some of the factors relating to in-flight collision avoidance," he added.

Using scale models of a North Central Convair turbo prop and an Air Wisconsin deHavilland DC 6, Jeffrey P. Dennis, 447 Rainbow Beach, Neenah, and Mrs. Janice Van Dinter, route 2, Menasha, reconstructed the collision as they saw it.

Jeffrey, 12, who said he was playing ball with friends at Mahler Park, saw the North Central plane, headed for Oshkosh, bank at a 45-degree angle just before the crash. The plane's engine seemed to be making an odd, chopping sound, he recalled.

Jeffrey said he saw the smaller Air Wisconsin plane, bound for Appleton, strike a wing tip on the North Central craft. The smaller plane then struck the tail section of the larger craft, he testified.

The Air Wisconsin craft then spun a full circle and dropped out of sight while the North Central plane spiraled tail first into Lake Winnebago, he said.

Mrs. Van Dinter said she was walking her bicycle east on Brighton Beach Road when she looked up and saw the North Central plane traveling southwest at an altitude that seemed lower than normal for flights over the area.

For a fraction of a second, she added, she saw a smaller plane heading in the opposite direction.

The bigger plane's engine stopped, she said, then there was "a ball of fire and pieces began dropping."

One plane spiraled nose first into the water, she said, its right wing missing. She did not see both planes fall. And, she explained, she did not know until later that two planes had collided. "They didn't look that close," she recalled.

RACINE — Gov. Patrick J. Lucey Monday urged local governments to use money they receive from federal revenue sharing to reduce property taxes.

The governor, in an unannounced appearance before the Wisconsin County Boards Association convention here, pledged that "every dime received at the state level (in revenue sharing funds) will go to tax relief in one form or another."

Lucey's appearance followed that of Mrs. Gladys Spellman, president of the National Association of Counties (NACo), who told the delegates that Wisconsin counties would share in $133.8 million under a just-worked-out conference committee compromise in Congress. This does not include what individual cities will receive under the program.

Lucey said he was aware that the intent of the federal program was to have the funds used for specific projects in the communities, but, the governor added, "I feel Wisconsin is far ahead of other states in those areas and I would like to see the bulk of revenue sharing go to property tax relief."

Dramatic changes

The governor told delegates that "we need dramatic changes in funding to relieve the property tax or we will see a bigger taxpayer revolt than we had last winter."

He added that he didn't think the property tax "was ever intended to pay for services such as the welfare and educational programs." Lucey said the small property owner was "being discriminated against by the over reliance on the property tax" since a much larger percentage of his assets were tied up in his property than was the case of a business or someone with large investments.

Mrs. Spellman, who is from Prince Georges County, Md., said that under the compromise revenue sharing plan Outagamie County would receive $601,000. Under the plan originally passed by the House of Representatives, the county would have gotten $550,000, while under the Senate passed version the county's share would have been $740,000.

Amounts for area counties under the compromise plan include: Brown, $1.26 million; Calumet, $171,000; Winnebago, $575,000; Fond du Lac, $732,000; and Manitowoc, $524,000.

"Perfect unit"

Mrs. Spellman, who is the first woman head of the national organization, termed the county the "perfect unit of government." She said the proliferation of local units of government and the fragmentation of services was the greatest single "debilitative factor in government."

Earlier, State Sen. Henry Dohrman, D-Racine, called on county leaders to make more and better use of existing tools to improve county government.

Dohrman termed the county executive "one of the best tools county government has to meet today's needs." He said he was disappointed that only three counties have seen fit to create the post.

Another unused tool, he said, is joint pacts with other counties or between counties and cities to accomplish goals.

He also cited the county assessor plan as the best way to achieve equality and fairness in tax assessing, but noted that only Kenosha County has put the plan into effect.

Dohrman noted that counties were pressing for home rule, but warned that there were many questions of conflict with municipal home rule which would have to be first resolved.

The state senator agreed that the county was the logical form of government to handle today's problems and to work out differences between urban and rural areas.

Schools told to trim salaries to meet no-tax-hike budget

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

The Appleton Board of Education Monday night directed the administration to come in next week with an operating budget for 1973 that would require no tax increase.

Specifically, the board directed the administrative team to pare about $125,000 from the estimated $650,000 that had been recommended for increases in all salaries, fringes and related salary items. The vote was 3-2.

Board member John McKenzie proposed the cut. He said the time had ended when the capital outlay and maintenance accounts should be hacked by cuts.

He also defended his motion against arguments that salary funds cuts would make contract negotiations more difficult. Appleton's system is negotiating with maintenance personnel and will start talks with teachers next month.

"Appleton is a good school system with a competitive pay scale, and its teacher turnover is only around 5 per cent each year when it was 25 or 30 per cent a few years ago," McKenzie said.

He said later the board should recognize that the supply of teachers has increased tremendously relative to available positions.

Seek tax hike

The administrative team had brought in a budget recommendation Monday night calling for a 7.8 per cent hike in the property taxes for school purposes. The package would have required $9.1 million in property tax revenues compared with $8.4 million for this year.

However, with the tax base increase in the district, the school tax increase requested would have meant only an additional 58 cents on the tax rate, or a 1.75 per cent rate hike.

The team's recommendation was for an $11,827,343 budget, down about $200,000 from the total of the accumulated requests of each individual school building. The team's budget request is $846,259, or 7.7 per cent over the current $10.9 million budget.

If the board finally accepts McKenzie's $125,000 reduction, and makes no more cuts or additions, the final budget would be about $11.7 million, or about 6.5 per cent over the 1972 budget.

McKenzie cited budget conditions which, he said, would allow for a budget increase without a property tax hike. These included an estimated 1972 budget surplus of $189,000, caused by an unexpected increase in state aids and required bookkeeping measures.

Increased tax base

The administration also had pointed out earlier that the annual bonded indebtedness retirement would be reduced by over $200,000 next year, and the increased tax base in the school district would total about $250,000.

Administrators cautioned McKenzie that the so-called $189,000 windfall was a one-year deal, and the district was losing about $317,000 in utility taxes because of state-level changes.

Dr. Kenneth Johnston, director of administrative services, noted the reduction ordered represented approximately the salaries of the teachers at Foster School.

Kenneth Sager, board president, had

Panel delves into bus issue

BY CLIFF MILLER

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Launching its search for long-term solutions to Appleton's bus service dilemma, the Parnell Study Committee began Monday with the assumption that the city needs some form of public transportation.

Reserve Judge Andrew W. Parnell, committee chairman, appointed a subcommittee to deal with the question, "Bus or No Bus?" But the retired circuit judge said the outcome of the study seems almost predictable, and he moved on to name other subcommittees to probe questions that arise only if the recommendation is to keep the buses running.

The subcommittees, consisting of one to three members from the 12 member panel, will examine the school busing situation, state and federal financial aids, subsidies and municipal operation of buses, activities of the Governor's Study Committee on Mass Transit, and ways of setting a suitable level of bus service.

Parnell, who stepped into the driver's seat of the bus study on invitation of Mayor James Sutherland, also confessed he has undergone a change of opinion about the plight of Fox River Bus Lines and its city-service subsidiary, Appleton City Transit, Inc.

Commends line

Parnell told a representative of the bus line that when the firm first sought a subsidy from the city, he suspected it was merely a scheme to dip into the city coffers for selfish motives. Parnell said that after examining the facts he has concluded that Appleton owes the bus line a debt for having hung on as long as it has without seeking public help.

Parnell praised the late Olof Lundquist, founder of the bus line, as "a great individual" who single-handedly kept his buses running without public assistance when lines in other cities were foundering.

But Parnell said circumstances have changed and it is doubtful that anyone could operate a bus system today at a profit. "You are in serious trouble," he told Kay Kreutzman, granddaughter of Lundquist and a co-owner of the firm.

Mayor Sutherland opened the maiden meeting of the study committee, reminding members that the city is in a "time-is-money kind of a situation" and urging haste in concluding the study. Parnell at one point suggested a completion target date of late-October.

The city has agreed to make up any city transit operating losses from Sept. 1 until final action is taken either on the committee's recommendations or on the independent initiative of the council.

Improve service

Committee members generally supported Parnell's views in a preliminary airing of individual opinions. Several members and public transit and planning experts on the sidelines mentioned improvements in services and better use of modern marketing techniques as ways to attract more riders and cut operating losses.

But there was agreement that the best service and most aggressive salesmanship would not turn a profit.

Albert M. Johnson, a Kimberly-Clark financial executive, pointed out that, "It has got to be cheaper for several people to get together to travel, than for each to travel separately."

He urged "creative marketing" to persuade people of the advantages.

"You don't make it difficult for people to buy your product in a store," Johnson admonished.

But he agreed with Parnell that "it would be a very uphill battle" to make bus service profitable.

East Central Regional Planning Commission planner Lawrence Michaels pointed out that modern

City to challenge fee town levies at landfill

Rather than repeal the city's fee for dumping demolition waste at the Mackville landfill, a city council committee has recommended challenging the Town of Center's fee for use of the city-owned disposal site.

The streets and sanitation committee recommended the legal challenge Monday as an alternative to Ald. Glenn Thompson's (13th) proposal to drop the city's $20 per load fee for dumping waste from building-wrecking projects.

Professional wrecking firms have been doubly-taxed by the city and town, and Thompson's proposal was aimed at relieving the city half of the burden.

Public Works Director Robert Miller advised against dropping the city fee, however. The charge was imposed against wrecking firms at Miller's suggestion, with the reasoning that the limited space at the landfill would be soon consumed if an excess of demolition waste was allowed in.

The Town of Center, meanwhile, has been charging fees ranging from $60 to $600 for annual dumping permits, which the town requires for anyone hauling solid waste into the town from other municipalities.

Even the City has obtained a permit, paying the $600 maximum fee for the right to use the city-owned landfill.

Some Appleton businessmen have complained about the town charge, but their requests to the city to challenge the legality of the fee have gone unheeded prior to Monday's streets and sanitation meeting. The committee recommendation goes to the full council.

United Fund to begin '72 drive

The United Fund will officially open its 1972 campaign drive with a kickoff dinner Sept. 26 at the Country Aire Club, 2311 W. Spencer St., Appleton. Guest speaker for the annual event will be CBS news correspondent, Richard Threlkeld.

Threlkeld began with CBS in 1966 after obtaining degrees from Ripon College in (1959), Northwestern University, 1961, and Columbia University 1965. Before his transfer to San Francisco in 1970, Threlkeld was a combat correspondent in Vietnam for two years where he was wounded in the Que Son Valley battle of November, 1968.

Anyone interested in attending the dinner may obtain the $3.50 tickets from the United Fund offices located at 324 E. Washington St., Appleton. The telephone number is 739-5126.

'73 welfare budget eased slightly by OCHC mental care situation

Confusion over the future of mental care facilities at the Outagamie County Health Center has resulted in at least a short-term savings in the County's record 1973 welfare budget.

Disabled age and old age assistance allotments had been increased considerably in the proposed budget because the county's Department of Social Services anticipated having to assume the cost of maintaining 94 county hospital (mental) beds under what appeared to be an imminent state ordered cutback in the number of mental patients there as well as at other county hospitals in Wisconsin.

Beds no longer used for mental patients would be converted to Public Medical Institution (PMI) use. The cost of keeping mental patients in the county hospital does not reflect on the Department of Social Services budget, but if the mental patient beds were converted to PMI use, part of the cost would be shifted to the categorical aids section of the county welfare budget.

The health center's board of trustees told the county's Board of Social Services July 10 that it appeared certain the state Legislature would order the changeover. Trustees, in making the prediction, cited a recent study by the state Division of Hygiene which criticized an inappropriate use of mental hospital beds over a long period of time in Wisconsin. If the state recommendations were followed, eight of the state's 35 county hospitals would be closed.

Health Center Supt. Eugene K.

Speener late last week informed County Welfare Director James E. Stamp to hold off on any changes relating to the mental health programming at the center.

Studies into mental health care also are being done by a governor's task force and the Wisconsin County Boards Association, Speener wrote Stamp.

Because of "... the varied and conflicting reports and recommendations (from the three study groups)," the health center trustees "... felt that it would be unwise to proceed with our conversion until such time as appropriate guidelines have been set."

He said the trustees endorse the change from mental patient beds to PMI use and "it is likely that eventually this conversion will take place."

Helen Harn enters plea of innocent

OSHKOSH — The first degree murder trial of Helen Harn continued this morning in Winnebago County Circuit Court Branch 2 as testimony was given by the first person to arrive at the scene after the April 13, 1971, shooting death of Mack Harn.

Mrs. Harn, 54, of rural Nekoosa is charged with the murder of her ex-husband at his small, white, frame house on U.S. 41 about one-half mile north of County Trunk GG in the Town of Vinland.

Mrs. Harn changed her plea Monday from innocent by reason of insanity to innocent.

Harold R. Steinke, 34, 1236 Jackson St., Oshkosh, testified that as he was traveling in the Neenah area on the afternoon of the shooting, he saw the Menasha ambulance on U.S. 41. About one-half hour later, he again saw the ambulance and a police car. Steinke, who also is a county deputy sheriff, then turned on his police monitor and heard that they were searching for a house to offer assistance.

Because of vague directions given by the person who called for help, the ambulance driver and sheriff's officers could not pinpoint the location of the shooting.

Gave location

According to his testimony, as Steinke approached the Harn house, he saw a woman whom he identified as Mrs. Harn, standing outside waving her arms. Steinke stopped and asked if that were the place the ambulance was trying to find. Mrs. Harn then showed Steinke where a telephone was located in the house and he called the sheriff's department to give them the location.

Steinke testified that while he was in the house he saw Harn lying on a bed holding a sheet to his stomach. He said he also saw another woman in the house. He said he knew her by her maiden name.

Mrs. Harn is accused of shooting her

Shiocton area survey funds are authorized

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — A proposed topographic mapping survey of the Shiocton area got a $20,000 boost Monday — contingent on the raising of $10,000 from local sources.

State Sen. Gerald Lorge, R-Bear Creek, won the grant from the state Board on Government Operations, the emergency funding arm of the legislature.

Lorge told the six-man committee that the 1966 flood plain zoning law which requires build approval before construction can be carried out in flood plains has left economic development in "desperate" condition in the Shiocton area.

Because of local geographical conditions and requirements of the stringent floodplain law, said Lorge, the entire village of Shiocton and over 70 per cent of the Town of Bovina in Outagamie County are included in the flood plains of the Wolf River and two tributaries. Time consuming, expensive and often inaccurate surveys are needed before building authorization can be obtained, Lorge said.

The funds are needed, said Lorge, to compile an accurate topographic map with a two-foot scale, rather than the five foot scale generally used.

He won the backing of four of the six members of the committee. Voting against his request — which was opposed by Gov. Patrick J. Lucey — were Assembly Assistant Minority Leader John Shabaz, R-New Berlin, and State Rep. George Molinaro, D-Kenosha.

State Secretary of Administration Joe E. Nusbaum opposed the proposal, contending that the isolated section of the state should not be treated differently than other areas of Wisconsin.

ex-husband at close range with a .22 caliber rifle. He died at Theda Clark Hospital, Neenah, shortly before 9 a.m. the day after the shooting. Cause of death was listed as traumatic shock resulting from loss of blood due to a gunshot wound to the abdomen.

Harn was the owner and operator of Harn's Barn, a furniture store in Neenah. He obtained a Mexican divorce from his wife in 1969. That divorce was found to be valid in the United States by Circuit Court Judge William E. Crane in 1970. The couple was married in 1939 and had 12 children, 11 of whom are still living.

According to court records, Mrs. Harn came to her ex-husband's home and found him there with Mrs. Sylvia Messing, 33, Oshkosh. Mrs. Messing was divorced and had three children.

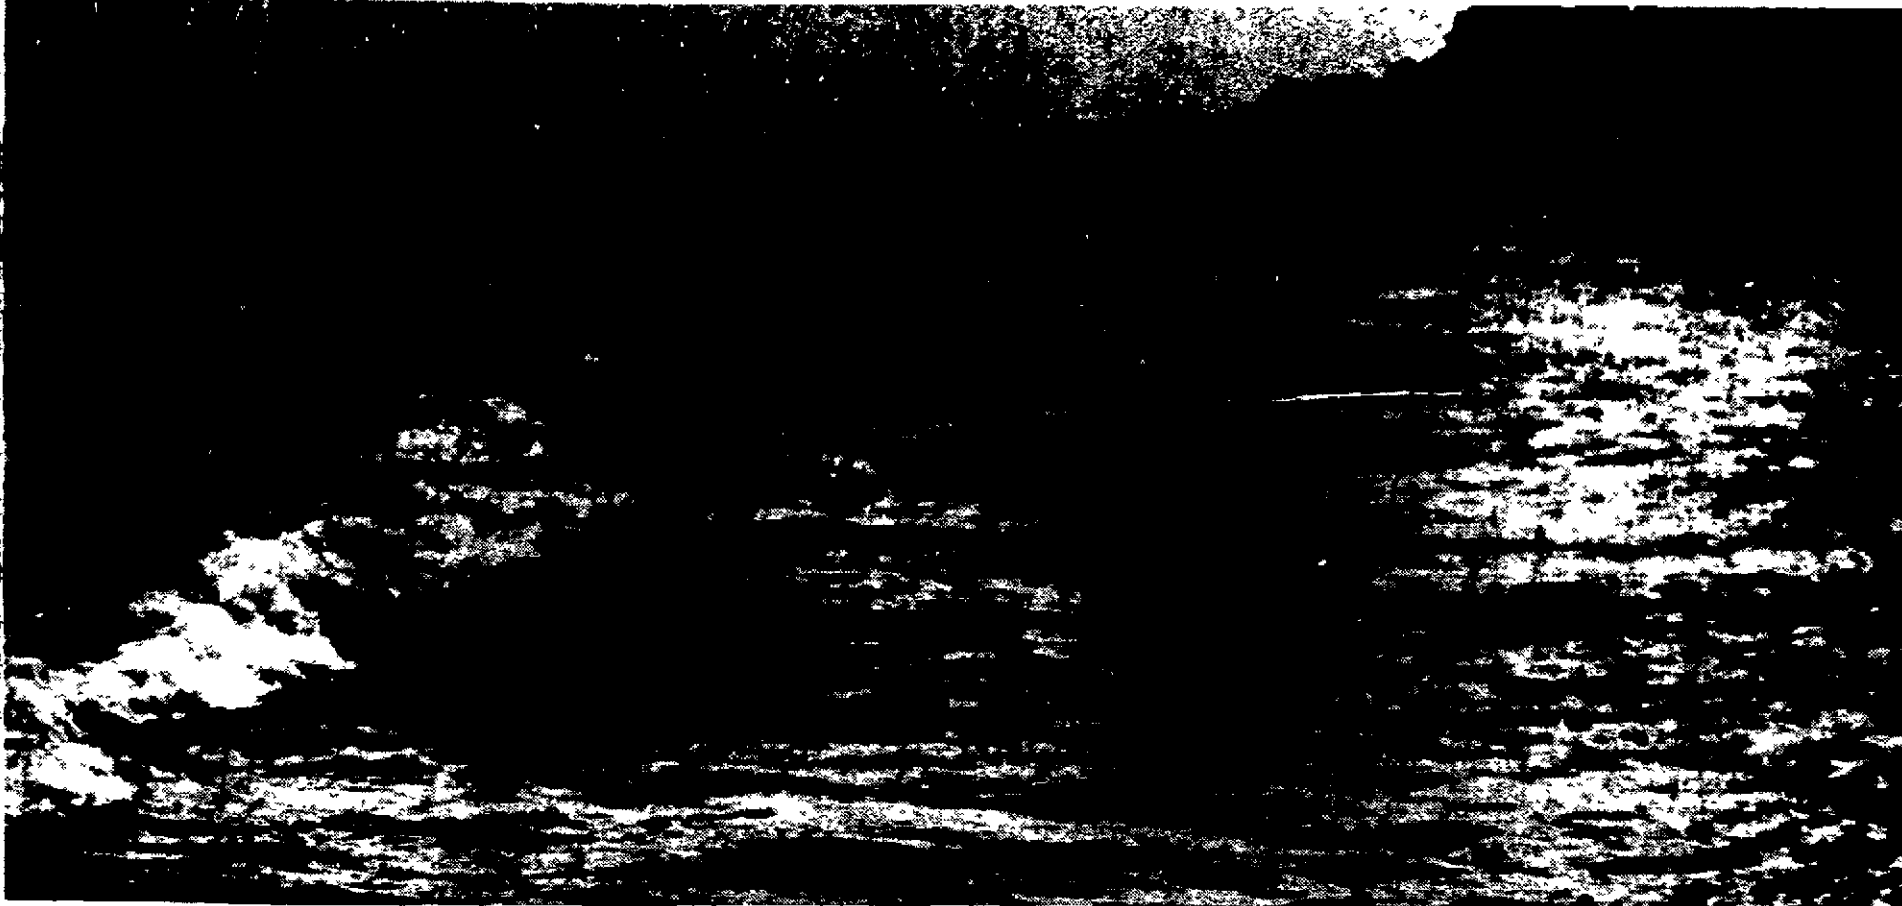

Shot after discussion

Mrs. Harn entered the house with the rifle and after some discussion she allegedly shot Harn.

He and Mrs. Messing then got Mrs. Harn out of the house, but she re-entered and allegedly fired one more shot, hitting a window casing and narrowly missing Mrs. Messing. The two women then grappled on the floor, after which a call for assistance was made to a telephone operator.

The trial began Monday with the selection of a jury of eight men and four women. On a motion by the defense, the jurors were taken to view the house where the shooting occurred.

Opening statements to introduce the jurors to the case were presented Monday afternoon by William Carver, county district attorney, who is prosecuting the case for the state, and by Allan Cain of Appleton, the defense attorney.

Dismiss robbery charge against Appleton man

Armed robbery charges against a 19-year-old Appleton man were dismissed without prejudice Monday by Circuit Court Judge Gordon Myse.

Jerry Haugner, 218 E. Marquette St., was to have gone on trial today for participating in the March 8 armed robbery of the Clark service station, 134 N. Richmond St.

Dist. Atty. James R. Long asked for the dismissal without prejudice, which means the defendant may still be tried at a later date on the same charges.

Long said his request came after he lost the testimony of an important witness. The witness was a Neenah service station attendant, who testified at Haugner's July 21 preliminary hearing that the defendant had held up Don's Gulf Station, Neenah, on Jan. 23 and took $548.

The prosecution was attempting to relate Haugner to the two incidents, but suffered a set back when the Neenah charges against Haugner were dismissed in Winnebago County Court. Haugner's attorney had moved for dismissal of the Appleton charges before Myse last Thursday, but the motion was denied.

Haugner and a companion were charged with taking $309 from the Clark station the evening of March 8 when one of the two reportedly pulled a handgun on an attendant.

The charges against Haugner were lodged after investigation by city police and after a closed court John Doe hearing.

Buses . . .

buyers seldom make "economic decisions," but rather buy convenience. And bus service has been growing less convenient, he said.

Parnell agreed that better posting of schedules and bus-stop locations, stricter adherence to schedules, more frequent bus runs, bus-stop shelters and improved equipment would attract riders. But he said he was sure bus line executives were also aware of these needs but unable to afford them due to their financial plight.

Studies available

The committee received a major leg up in its work by the availability of two professional studies of local transit conditions, one by the State Department of Transportation and the other through a private consulting firm.

Parnell paraphrased the latter report, just completed in preliminary form and distributed last week to committee members, saying that continued private operation of buses is virtually rules out as impossible, leaving the alternatives of continued public subsidy to the private firm or outright public takeover of the service.

The only clear difference of opinion between members was between City Atty. David Geenen and Appleton School District transportation director Carl Williams. Williams said the school district's contract school bus service should be kept out of the study and Geenen said it should be included, as a possible source of revenue to beef up bus line revenue while relieving its need for direct subsidy.

Parnell included the question in the group's list of tasks, assigning Williams and the Rev. James Putman of St. Mary's Catholic Church to explore it.

Ald. Glenn Thompson (13th) said the primary question is, "Do we need the bus service or transportation in Appleton. Is it absolutely necessary?" Ald. Lois Mittlestadt (6th), the other council representative on the panel, had a variation on Thompson's view. "I am convinced that a city this size does need transit service, but I'm not sure it has to be a bus system," she said.

School budget. . .

made the first comment on the no-tax-increase budget when he suggested that as long as education improvements apparently weren't a goal, maybe no-tax-increase should be.

Unhappy by what he considered the administration's over-concern about tax dollars to the detriment of educational improvements, he said that he supported the cut but not all from salaries.

He said he considered it a mistake to cut so sharply from salary accounts. It was a bad position from which to start negotiations with the teachers, he added.

Changed position

Sager, whose position represented an about face, said this morning he had changed his no-tax-increase position today because there apparently was no place from which to make the cuts. Sager today said he now supported the administration proposal.

Sager and Mrs. Harold Danford had voted against McKenzie's motion, with Sager explaining his concern about negotiations. John Livingston and Paul Heid voted for the motion.

District Admin. Orlyn Zieman and Johnston explained the administration budget proposal to the board, with Johnston noting that it was still a "tentative thing" because of unknowns, such as the teacher master contract impact.

The revenue budget showed an anticipated 27.1 per cent, or about $13,600 increase in federal aids, and a 13 per cent, or about $255,000, increase in state aids.

The board pondered the budget proposal for about two hours. The members discussed some individual items, and considered philosophies of spending and of their role in cutting or adding to the administration proposal.

They also discussed summer school, and the fact that today's summer schools are and probably never will be of the magnitude of those of the mid- and late-1960's. They agreed they can't afford enrichment summer school programs, only remedial ones.

Maintain reputation

Johnston told the board the administration was offering a "defensible budget," which would allow the school system to maintain its educational reputation. The administration has tried to be fiscally responsible, he added.

Appleton schools don't have some of the "fringes," such as hot lunch programs and more than minimum required transportation, that other schools have, Johnston said.

The board toyed with the idea of altering the transportation requirements, say, to pay for transporting all youngsters within the city and two miles from school, but dropped it.

Board members sought to compare the needs for batting cages versus books versus carpeting versus overhead projectors, and came up with no answers, noting that the administration probably understood needs better than they do.

James Westphal, director of academic services, noted things, such as dropouts and what the schools are doing to keep them, also must be part of the balancing act.

Young hunters' safety course to begin tonight

The Outagamie Conservation Club will conduct a Wisconsin hunter safety course for young people in the Appleton area who are interested in hunting and recreational shooting.

The course will be conducted, at 9 p.m., starting today at the National Guard Armory, 2801 W. Second St.

Marv Hollfelder, Neenah, is the chief instructor. All instruction will be conducted by certified safety instructors who have completed certification requirements established by the National Rifle Association and the Wisconsin Conservation Department.

Enrollees must be at least 12 years old by the date of the final lesson, Oct. 24, 1972. There is no maximum age although the course is designed primarily for youths up to 16 who have had little or no experience with firearms. Registration and the vision test is slated for 7 p.m. today. Classes will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. Sept. 26, Oct. 3, 10, 17 and 24.

The $2.50 registration fee covers all materials required for the course. A parent or guardian is required to sign the registration card. The course will be held to a minimum of 40 students.

Upon successful completion of the course, students will receive arm patches and certificates. Under State law, they will be entitled to hunt and use firearms at 14, unaccompanied by a parent or guardian as would otherwise be required up to 16.

NCR official to address sales meeting

Mr. George P. Marohn, NCR paper field sales manager, Appleton Papers, Inc., will be the featured speaker at the Sept. 20 "kick-off" meeting of the Sales and Marketing Executives Association of Northeastern Wisconsin.

In his talk, "Selling — Past, Present and Future", Marohn will discuss the evolution of the selling function and will demonstrate the need for a more sophisticated approach to successfully make the sale.

S.M.E.J. of Northeastern Wisconsin is a part of a professional society of more than 28,000 business executives.

sin. The proposal should be part of a general budget request for such purposes, the committee was told.

Lorge contended that the flood plain law, required by the state Department of Natural Resources and the federal government, is using local taxpayers' funds to enforce laws which prohibit local construction because of outdated and inaccurate mapping of the area. another $42.8 million, the regents were told.
Actual new program spending requests by campuses were cut from $54.3 million to a suggested $17.3 million level by the central administration, the regents were informed. Some campuses will be shown later this week to be proposed for operation at a lower budgeted level for the 1973-75 biennium than authorized to spending during the current two-year period, according to system officials.
Total budget requests from the campuses were cut from a total of 175 proposed to 70 approved, according to the budget documents.
Weaver said that the budget had been pared to the "bare bones" because the state is entering a period of fiscal austerity, and because it is best that any deceleration in the rate of spending growth should be decided within the system.
"Don't wait for external forces to push it upon us," he warned the regents.
The UW System budget must be built, he said, "with a new sense of responsibility and a new sense of accountability."

Two themes
Weaver said that two themes ran through his first biennial budget request — also the first for a merged UW System. One will underline his goal of "revitalizing the Wisconsin idea" of statewide community service by the UW, he said. The other will be to "maintain the excellence" of the UW System "in a period of retrenchment."
Officials pointed out that the new state tax spending proposed is sharply reduced from a proposed 70 per cent hike presented to the regents of the separate systems for 1969-71 and a combined 44 per cent increase proposed for 1971-73.
At least a part of the reason for the slowing rate of state tax spending increase lies with the leveling off of new student enrollments in the Wisconsin university system.

The merged system expects virtually no additional students this year over last, for instance, and the proposed 1973-75 budget is the first in many years to be presented without proposed extra funds for additional student workload.
The regents will work on the budget later this week, preparing it for submission to Lucey later this fall. Lucey will make his spending recommendations as part of his general state budget request of the legislature early next year.

$3.4 million from LAWCON
MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Wisconsin's share of the federal Land and Water Conservation Fund will be $3.4 million this fiscal year, Gov. Patrick J. Lucey said Monday.
Lucey said he received confirmation of the figure from the Department of the Interior.
He said the funds would be used "to broaden the base of outdoor recreational opportunities" in Wisconsin.

determined to whom the package was addressed.
Scotland Yard has been watching for an incident like this ever since the Munich massacre of 11 members of Israel's Olympic squad Sept. 5 and subsequent Israeli reprisals against Arab guerrillas.
The package bomb exploded on a level with Schachori's stomach, Scotland Yard said.
Initial reports on the explosion were confused.
An Embassy spokesman first said Shachori was not badly wounded but had merely suffered shock. He then said it was thought the agricultural attache had a stomach wound.
Then Scotland Yard said the Embassy reported the man was dead by the time an ambulance got him to a hospital two miles away.
Police quickly cordoned off the private road outside the embassy and refused to allow any members of the public or press through.
American Embassy officials in Beirut reported Syria arrested Maj. Richard Barrett, 36, a native of Laramie, Wyo. on Sept. 9. Diplomatic informants in Beirut said Barrett was arrested at Deraa, the crossing point from Jordan into Syria, and that all efforts to secure his release have thus far been unsuccessful.
No reason for the arrest was given, the sources said, and Syrian officials

House panel backs aid bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — With an endorsement of the so-called Nixon Doctrine, the House Appropriations Committee has approved an extra $481 million for military aid and an over-all foreign-programs bill totaling $4.2 billion.
The committee said it felt the $481-million boost over last year's military-aid level was justified because President Nixon's policies had saved money and GI lives by bringing about troop reductions abroad.
The military-aid boost and an extra $526.6 million for international-development-loan funds were the biggest increases in a bill $1 billion higher than last year's but still $967.9 million below Nixon's requests.
The bill includes $2 billion for military aid, $1.2 billion for economic aid and $81 million for the Peace Corps for the fiscal year which started last July 1.
Reached by phone from Beirut said they had no comment.
The American Embassy in Beirut would release no details on Barrett or his family and no direct contact was allowed with Mrs. Barrett at her Beirut hotel.
Meanwhile, the cabinet of the federation of Syria, Egypt and Libya declared aggression on any of the three Arab states will be considered an attack on all and retaliatory action will be swift.
Aggression, "even on one inch of the federal state," will not be permitted to pass without "swift deterrent action," the cabinet said in a statement published in today's Egyptian press.
Syria has been expecting an Israeli attack since Saturday, when the Israelis plunged deep into Lebanon...
Earlier today, the secretary-general of the Arab League arrived in Beirut to mediate tensions between the Lebanese army and Palestinian guerrillas in the wake of Israel's invasion of southern Lebanon over the weekend, Cairo's semi-official newspaper, Al Ahram, reported.

Economy still heading higher

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's economy, still on a strong upward path, may top the Nixon administration's official forecast made in January, government reports indicate.
The Federal Reserve Board supplied evidence of continuing economic expansion Monday, reporting that its index of industrial production rose 0.5 per cent in August after a 0.3 per cent gain a month earlier. The index is regarded as one of the most sensitive indicators of the economy.
On Capitol Hill, Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz disclosed that the administration had revised upward its 1972 economic forecast. Gross National Product, the output of the nation's goods and services, is expected to grow $7 billion higher than forecast in January, Shultz said.
If so, this means that GNP, the broadest measure of the economy, will grow by more than $100 billion this year and make 1972 one of the best years for the economy.
Shultz's report said that GNP is expected to average $1.152 trillion this year, compared with $1.145 trillion estimated in January.
As for industrial production, the board said its index moved up 8.2 per cent higher than a year earlier to 114.3 per cent of the 1967 average.

The production gain was strongest in the manufacture of durable goods, but output in the mining and utilities industries showed some decline.
Automobile production, after allowing for model changeovers, remained at the same annual rate registered in July, 8.5 million units.
The board's report also showed that the central bank is continuing its policy of expanding the nation's money supply to accommodate the economic growth. In August, the money supply increased at an annual rate of 6 per cent, slower than the July rate but still a fairly strong growth.
In July, the board disclosed only Monday, the Federal Reserve's Open Market Committee decided to influence the money market enough to keep short-term interest rates from falling too sharply because of international developments. This was in response to a money crisis overseas precipitated by a large accumulation of dollars by foreign central banks.
The committee feared that

Treasury-bill rates might fall too sharply if foreign central banks, with higher interest rates, acquired a significant amount.

Air travelers could face rule limiting smoke

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans, who are smoking more now than at any time in the last four years, may soon have to take a back seat on U.S. airlines.
Americans 18 and over will average 204 packs of cigarettes apiece this year, the most since 1968, the Agriculture Department predicted Monday. That's a two-pack increase over last year.
The average is for all Americans over 18, both smokers and non-smokers.
Meanwhile, the Civil Aeronautics Board Monday proposed a new rule to require segregation of smokers to the rear of the aircraft on all airlines, including charter and local service lines.
The CAB said it will wait until Nov. 3 before making a final decision on the rule, and will receive comments on it until that time.
Most trunk airlines already segregate smokers, while charter and local service lines usually do not.
Consumer advocate Ralph Nader has asked that smoking be banned on planes on grounds it is hazardous.
The Federal Aviation Administration ruled that smoking by passengers was not hazardous, but noted that more than 60 per cent of nonsmoking passengers complained that smoking by others was a nuisance.
The Agriculture Department said the previous high per capita smoking average was 210 packs in 1958. The rate declined to fewer than 200 packs in 1969 and 1970, then rose to 202 packs last year.
Americans averaged an all-time high of more than 217 packs in 1963 before cigarette smoking was linked with lung cancer and other ailments.

U.S. limelight awaits Illinois' next governor

BATAVIA, Ill. — Dan Walker, Democratic nominee for governor of Illinois, was energetically handshaking his way through supporters at the VFW Hall here when this question from a voter stopped him short: "Are you fully supporting McGovern?"

No words could have been more disturbing to Walker, particularly in this heavily Republican community just west of Chicago. The many Republicans who paid $6 for pizza and beer at the VFW Hall to help Walker's local campaign wanted no part of Sen. George McGovern for President.

"Yes, I support him," Walker replied, quickly and quietly, racing on to the next handshaker as if his questioner carried the plague. Through the evening of campaigning, Walker never mentioned McGovern's name.

The specter of a Nixon landslide in Illinois clouds Walker's apparent lead in the nation's most interesting contest for governor. Republican Gov. Richard Ogilvie, fighting uphill for a second term, in every speech links McGovern and Walker. Conqueror of the Daley machine in last March's primary, Walker resolutely runs away from McGovern (just as he did at the Batavia VFW). If Walker loses, he can justifiably blame McGovern.

Beyond expediency, it is ideologically fitting that Walker keep his distance from McGovern. While McGovern turned out to be just another super liberal, Walker evolved into the New Populist that McGovern's theoreticians wanted him to be.

The race for governor is certainly not what it once seemed superficially: Limousine-liberal Walker, who as $150,000-a-year general counsel for Montgomery Ward crusaded against police brutality, vs. law-and-order conservative Richard Ogilvie, tough talking former sheriff of Cook County (Chicago). In reality, after four widely acclaimed years as governor, Ogilvie takes the liberal line that government is an effective problem solver. Walker's campaign indicts government, spending, the establishment and, in particular, politicians.

New Populism
Thus, this contest takes on national implications. If Walker's antigovernment line wins in the face of a national Democratic debacle, he and his New Populism would attract instant national attention. It also would indicate a doubtful future for practicing liberals such as Ogilvie, whose passage of a long overdue state income tax made him politically vulnerable.

That's not the way Walker's campaign began in November, 1970. Author of a celebrated report charging a police riot during the 1968 Democratic national convention in Chicago, Walker was the darling of liberals nationwide seeking retribution against Mayor Richard J. Daley.

What changed this tone was Walker's remarkable walk across Illinois, climaxed by his astonishing primary victory over the regular organization. Finding ordinary citizens outraged by high-taxing, high-spending politicians, Walker turned to white collar Wallaceism: Free of racism and more sophisticated but still an anti-establishment preaching ("I want an end to politics as usual").

Promising no new taxes and assailing Ogilvie for wasteful spending, Walker has cut deep into conservative voters. Republicans at the Batavia fund raiser, for example, were bitter against Ogilvie because of rising taxes and state funds for a nearby jet airport. As for Ogilvie wrapping George McGovern around his neck, Walker points out disagreements with McGovern — on amnesty for Vietnam draft dodgers, for example.

But Walker's rightward drift has helped Ogilvie cut into the old liberal coalition: Jews, labor leaders, Chicanos, even blacks. Whereas old line Bourbon Republicans manage President Nixon's Illinois campaign at the county level, Ogilvie is building a new Republican party at the grassroots (partly recruited liberals offended by Walker's brand of Wallaceism).

The winner here seems ordained for a national role. T. all, handsome Dan Walker, 50, surely would start thinking about the presidency in 1976. Dick Ogilvie, 49, short but no longer so stubby after losing 53 pounds, seems an unlikely presidential contender. But if he overcomes Walker's lead, he will try nationally for a broader-based, more progressive party than President Nixon has conceived. It is one of 1972's many ironies that his chances to perform that role depend on whether Nixon's Illinois lead is big enough to save Ogilvie from the New Populism.

LBJ interns study in state office's

AUSTIN (AP) — Thirty-one students from the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs are getting a different perspective on their government studies this summer—they're serving as interns in government offices throughout Texas and across the country.

Summer internships are required between first and second year studies for every student at the LBJ School, a graduate program of the University of Texas at Austin.

a Republican controlled legislature was cutting state aids to local governments.

During those years, property taxes jumped from $151 to $221 per person, while the national average was going from $132 to $168. The District of Columbia, which had a higher percentage increase than Wisconsin, went from $115 to $169.

In a separate analysis, the commission staff said a third of the nation's families carried "extraordinary residential property tax burdens" of more than six per cent of their income.

Based on two measures on the percentage of income going to property taxes, Wisconsin tied for fourth highest with New York in 1970 and 1971, behind New Hampshire, Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

Let doctor decide if driving should stop

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My recent checkup showed I have angina pectoris. I am taking my medication and feel fine, but my friends tell me that with angina I can expect fainting spells or blackouts and should not be driving my car.

I read everything I see on heart conditions but have not seen any mention of blackouts. Am I worrying needlessly? —A.A.D.

Another case of the calamity howlers trying to show how much they know — but actually succeeding in showing how much they don't.

Faintness and blackouts can occur with an anginal attack, but they are not common. Your friends are not confining themselves to the fact when they say you can expect them.

It is true that, if you use nitroglycerin pills when you have attacks, you may momentarily feel giddy and flushed, but that is a far cry from fainting or having a blackout.

I would judge that you are indeed worrying needlessly. To set your mind at rest, next time you see your doctor, ask him about driving. If he sees some other reason why you should curtail your driving or stop, so be it. But if he sees no reason to stop driving, then be guided by what he says instead of what your friends say.

Incidentally, nervous tension under certain circumstances while driving (or nervous tension when not driving) sometimes can provoke an attack of angina, but again, an attack of angina is hardly synonymous with a blackout.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have had hemorrhoids for approximately 20 years. I am 45. For the last six months I have had bleeding on several occasions. Tell me what is your cure for these? —W.Q.

Hemorrhoids are varicose veins in the anal region. In your case, as with most people who have this trouble, the condition becomes gradually worse as time passes. They tend to ulcerate and bleed. That's expectable.

If they are painful or itch (as they often do), ointments can be helpful in relieving the discomfort, but this is only a temporary expedient. Such ointments don't get rid of these varicose veins. They just alleviate the symptoms.

Although doctors have varied techniques for doing it, they all come down to the same basic answer: The only cure for hemorrhoids is removal of these varicose veins. There is no medication that will do it.

If you want detailed discussion of the whole problem, I suggest that you read my booklet, "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids." Send 25 cents and a long self-addressed, stamped envelope for a copy. It contains some important advice on after-care and ways to prevent recurrence of the trouble.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please discuss the immediate occurrence (with a vein stripping) of abnormal veins in feet, and in arms to elbows and hands. There were none before this operation except faintly on hands. Do you know of such happenings? Also there was skin tissue breakdown. —Mrs. J.B.

Veins in the arms and hands are not related to those of the feet or the vein-stripping operation. They are prominent veins but not varicose.

It is not unusual for secondary varicose veins to appear after a stripping operation, but these are usually quite superficial and can be corrected by injections.

However, the tissue breakdown may imply trouble in the deeper veins and should be investigated. Local treatment of the skin breakdown also is in order — and possibly supportive hosiery may be necessary.

Troubled with varicose veins? To make sure you are doing all you can to relieve the problem write to Dr. Thosteson in care of The Post-Crescent, requesting the booklet, "How to Deal With Varicose Veins," enclosing a long, self-addressed (use Zip code), stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover the cost of printing and handling.

Freeway isn't only place drivers jamming

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — What's more jammed than a San Francisco freeway at rush hour?

A San Francisco traffic court. Presiding Municipal Court Judge Joseph Kennedy said Wednesday the backlog of contested traffic violations is so bad that a motorist who decides to contest his ticket now has to wait five months to get into court.

Kennedy blamed the new wave of fighting motorists partly on insurance regulations. "The insurance companies raise your rates if you're convicted of any moving violations," he said.

Working girl and her job to be theme of two programs at Y in October

"Multi-Media Lets Loose" will be the topic Oct. 3 as 30-year-old Judi Krumenacher, Chicago, president and creative director of a quarter million dollar business, The Concept Group, makes her appearance at the Appleton YMCA.

Hers is the first of two dinner programs sponsored by the local group. She will present innovative ideas of multi-media communication and tell of her own success story and what made it happen.

The events are designed to help the working girl to do a better job, to see opportunities for self-development and to realize the importance of her place in today's business world.

On Oct. 10, Dr. Paul W. Greene, Appleton, consulting industrial psychologist, and Mary Stewart, representing the area of theater and education, will be guest speakers.

"Exploring Your Personal Media" will be the general theme with Dr. Greene concentrating on "Project the Real You."

Mary Stewart, Appleton, will use as her topic, "Introduce Voice and Visual Communication Strengths." She has performed with Skylight Theater, Milwaukee, and appeared as a soprano in the YMCA Theater production, "Highlights of Gilbert and Sullivan." She is instructor in creative movement and music and has performed musically with her husband and children in the area.

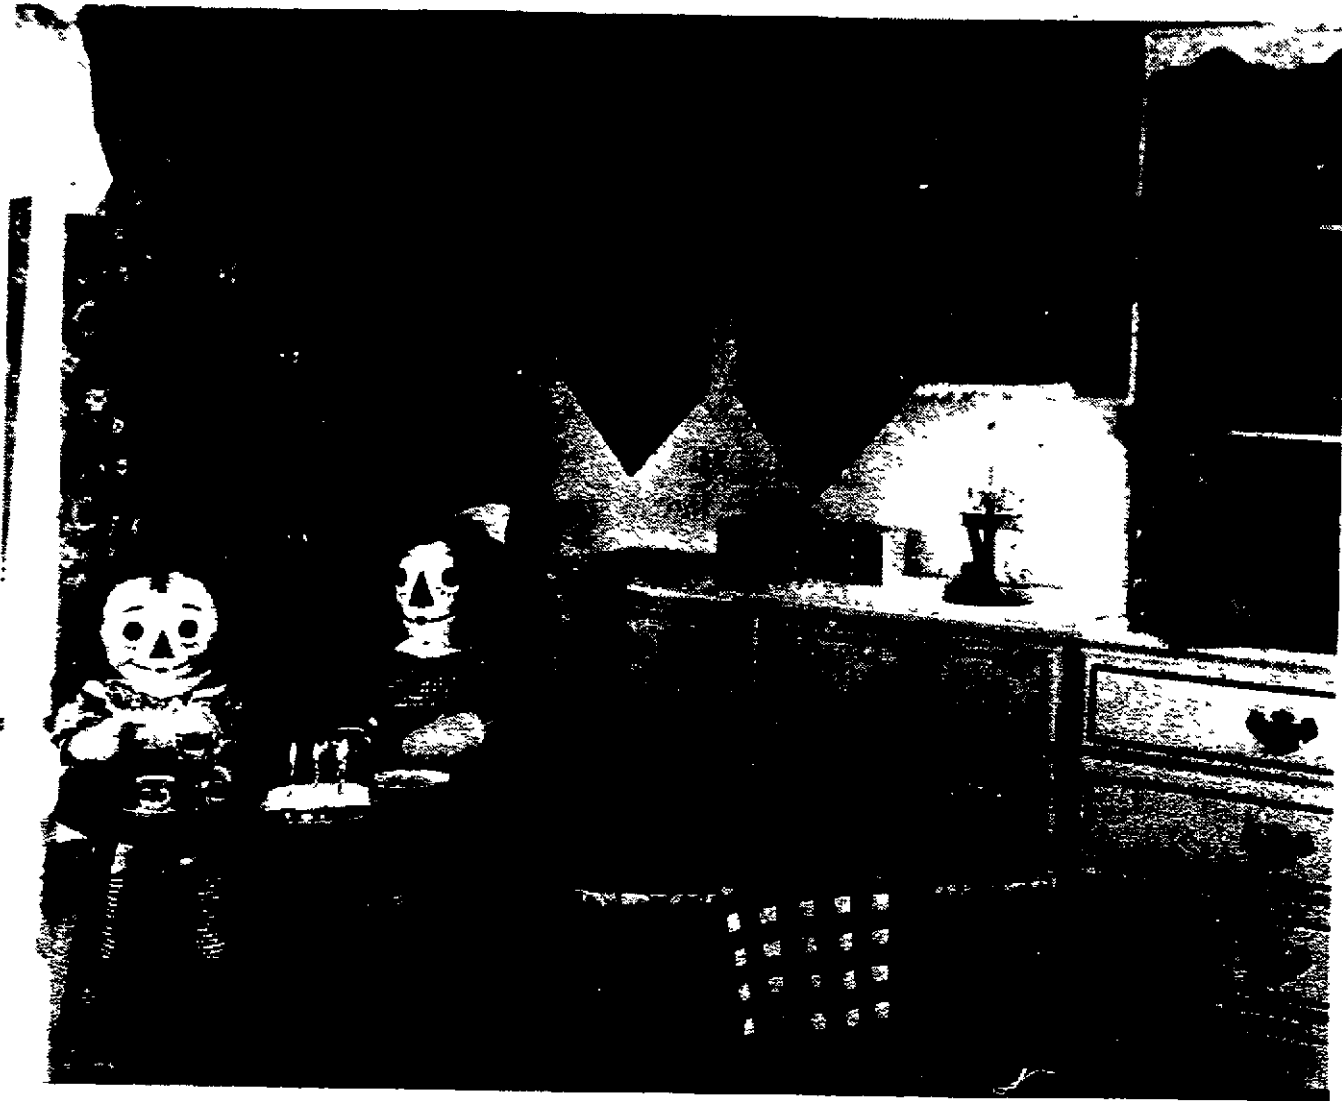

Reservation deadline is Sept. 26. They should be brought to the attention of the YMCA, Women's Dept., 218 E. Lawrence St., Appleton.

Steering committee members are Florence Gloudemans and Gloria Volkman, co-chairmen of the educational committee of NSA, Clarice Stake, YMCA women's committee, and Maxine Vanevenhoven, Y adult director.

Other committee members are Carol Dake, Riverside Paper; Alice Kabella, Appleton schools; Judy Smits and Joyce Bayer, Home Building and Loan; Debbie Resenow, Home Mutual Insurance; Grace Hines, Koehring Co.; Florence Brewster, Thilmany Pulp and Paper; Mary Zuleger, Aid Association for Lutherans; Bernice Herdina, Fox Valley Technical Institute; Laverne Moder, Lawrence University; Sharon Lennett, Appleton Chamber of Commerce; Jeanne Burke and Betty Wilcox, Kimberly-Clark Corp.; Pat Lalley, Appleton Wire; Lucy Prellwita, First National Bank; Lois Coenen, City Hall; Margaret Walden, Gimbels; Diane Meyer, from Bachman, Cummings and McIntyre.

Redecorate as daughter grows

From tot to teen

Haven for dolls and tots is this bedroom designed to grow up with a child. The furniture, with its timeless colonial styling, adapts to a child's new interests and expanding horizons. The gold-trimmed dressers and bookcase can house an entire doll colony now and later can stow notebooks, sweaters and jewelry. When the play tea set gives way to a guitar and the pink color scheme is replaced by a modish purple, the Kemp furniture with its neutral pearl white finish and simple lines will still be welcome.

A "stitch in time" is one stitch too many for legions of homemakers. More than 36 million American women can't, won't or hate to sew, according to a recent national report. Try as they might, their sewing endeavors are thwarted by broken needles, tangled threads and jangled nerves.

Time was when only their sewing sisters would save money on decorating. But conquering the complexities of a sewing machine is no longer a prerequisite to penny-wise decors. Today's self-adhering coverings, iron-on bindings and improved adhesives offer unlimited possibilities to the imaginative but non-sewing homemaker.

Stitchless decorating

A child's bedroom is the ideal spot for a fanciful flight into stitchless decorating. Since tastes and interests change with maturity, the personality of a child's room should mirror expanding horizons. More important than a large redecorating budget are a little do-it-yourself ingenuity and an adaptable furniture selection. A new collection from Kemp Furniture Industries, for example, is a versatile choice for little girls. Its timeless colonial styling and neutral pearl white finish adapt to changing themes and color schemes.

With a versatile furniture style as a base, the non-sewer can cue the surrounding decor to her daughter's age bracket without bursting the budget. A doll's tea party corner, for instance, would delight any mopped. A can of bright paint can restore attic or rummage sale play pieces to child-pleasing newness while a girlish floral fabric or self-adhesive wallpaper can be pasted to one wall for a cheerful backdrop.

Frankly feminine

Most pre-teen misses love frankly feminine rooms with lots of frills, ruffles and bows, and the non-sewing mom can now indulge these fancies. Even the canopy — perhaps the ultimate feminine favorite — can be achieved sans needle and thread. An open-ended hem can be made on a piece of fabric with iron-on binding. When this hem pocket is slipped over a rod or canopy frame and the fabric is gathered together, ruffles are the dainty result. To accomplish this effect, the fabric width must be one and one-half to two times the width of the frame or rod it goes on.

Stitchless decorative pillows are possible with fabric adhesive, available both in tape and glue varieties. Interesting pillow shapes, from tulips to hearts, can be cut out from fabric scraps.

KEWAUNEE — Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Nimmer, 1112 Dodge St., celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday with a dinner at Kubech's. Present at the celebration along with relatives and friends was wedding attendant Mrs. Elsie Krueger.

The couple was married Sept. 20, 1922 in Hortonville.

Mr. Nimmer was a cabinet maker with the Kwaunee Manufacturing Co. for 19 years and was employed by Hamachek Machine Co., from 1942 until his retirement in 1963.

Mr. and Mrs. Nimmer have one son, Lloyd of Kewaunee, and two grandchildren.

Legion gives essay theme

"Americanism and Amnesty — Are They Compatible?" is the theme chosen for the annual American Legion essay contest. The announcement, which pertains to high school students, was made during last Thursday's American Legion Auxiliary Fall Educational Conference in Shawano.

In attendance at the meeting were Mrs. Sherman W. Kapp, department vice president and unit secretary; Mrs. Howard J. Feavel, unit president; Margaret Hollenback, unit vice president and membership chairman; Mrs. Fred Gehrke, children and youth chairman; and Mrs. Raymond Stickney, member of veterans affairs and rehabilitation committees.

Workshops were held for presidents, secretaries, children and youth and veterans affairs and rehabilitation committees.

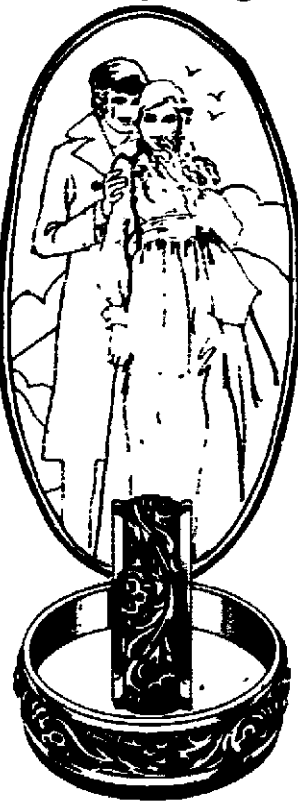

Department vice president and poppy chairman, Mrs. Kapp, encouraged all members to support the poppy program, to be knowledgeable about the poppy story and to help distribute and wear the poppy.

She demonstrated the assembling of the memorial flower which is made by hand by veterans.

Past department president Mrs. Paul Doerfler, national security and civil defense chairman, stated that the concern of all Americans is to be aware of national problems. She urged full participation in the democratic process asking that all auxiliary members exercise their right to vote. Mrs. Doerfler reminded those in attendance to teach and live by example the practices of law and order, to respect law and to support servicemen by working for the USO, Armed Forces Radio and Radio Free Europe. She urged letter writing to state and national representatives to encourage support of veterans' affairs.

Dr. DeRoche to be guest speaker at Winnebago mental health meeting

OSHKOSH — Dr. Edward F. DeRoche of Marquette University will be consultant and guest speaker for a seminar, "How to Talk to Kids About Sex," to be sponsored Thursday at Holiday Inn-Oshkosh by the Winnebago County Association for Mental Health.

Known for his sex education workshops for teachers and parents, Dr. DeRoche is chairman of the department of curriculum and administration, School of Education, Marquette University.

He is expected to address the general assembly of the seminar at 10 a.m. Thursday. He also will be guest speaker at the annual meeting of the association that evening.

Author of three books and more than 40 articles, Dr. DeRoche attended the University of Maine and did post graduate work at the University of Connecticut and Eastern Connecticut State College. He holds a doctor of philosophy degree from the University of Connecticut.

Planned for parents, teachers and other interested adults, the mental health association's seminar will begin with registration from 9 to 10 a.m. Discussions will follow the general assembly. Group sessions after lunch will conclude with a summary of the day's participation.

The 6:30 p.m. dinner will be followed by the association's annual meeting when awards will be presented to individuals and groups for outstanding work in the field of mental health.

Snoring can be sweet sound

Dear Ann Landers: I was one of those women who complained about my husband's snoring, same as your Miami griper. But believe me, when my husband left to go to Vietnam the silence in my bedroom nearly drove me out of my mind. More than once I regretted not having made a tape recording of my husband's snoring before he left. It would have been better than any sleeping pill. I used to turn the radio on beside my bed every night to drown out the deadly silence. Even then I tossed and turned for two and three hours.

Three weeks ago my man came back to me. I am so happy to have him home that I thank God with all my heart he is at my side snoring up a storm. It's the sweetest sound in the world. Please print my letter for every wife who is irritated by her husband's snoring. I wish I had seen one like it. —Love That Music

Dear Love: I wonder if you will be singing the same tune after the blush of your husband's homecoming has worn off. I hope so, honey. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers. A few words from you might prevent millions of Americans from becoming cripples. I am speaking of dental cripples. Statistics are dull, but a few might be useful. Do you know that less than 40 per cent of the people in the United States receive dental care? Nearly 67 million have some gum disease, and 75 per cent of these 67 million will lose all their teeth because of it. Half of all the children in the United States have never been to a dentist.

Most people have no idea what is going on in their mouths. Dental lectures are boring but here are a few facts that every child should know. If the oral bacteria is left alone for more than 24 hours they start to lead lives of their own. They particularly like sweets. These sweet-loving germs feast on sugar and then they give out a gluey fluid that sticks to the teeth. That's how decay starts. The best way to combat the Oral Mafia is by brushing twice a day and using dental floss once every 24 hours — either in the morning or at bedtime.

Please, Ann, rewrite my letter in your punch style. It could save millions of people from the misery of a bombed-out mouth. —Champion for Preventive Dentistry.

Dear Champ: I didn't have to do much "rewriting." Your style is plenty punchy. I just checked our supply of dental floss and I thank you for reminding me to put it on the shopping list for tomorrow.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I haven't been married long — just a few months. We get along lousy. A few weeks ago we had a terrible argument. I took my clothes and moved in with my mother. He let me stay there a week before he apologized and took me back to our apartment.

Now I discover I am pregnant. He says the baby isn't his. He's sure I saw an ex-boyfriend the week we were apart. He is mistaken. Can I have a blood test now and prove that the baby I am carrying is my husband's? Or must I sweat out the pregnancy and then prove it? —Catching Hell.

Dear C.H.: You'll have to wait until the baby is born — and even then a blood test can't prove which man is the father. It might prove, however, which one is not. Your obstetrician can explain this. In the meantime, get some counseling, either with or without your husband. Your child deserves better than the present welcoming committee.

Ruta Lee is not only one of Hollywood's most glamorous young ladies, she is also one of its most active and involved citizens. She has long been active in the THALIANS (a group organized to help provide medical help for mentally retarded children) and has devoted much time to many other worthy causes.

She is equally at home in the films, on television or on the stage and radio. Perhaps Ted Allan, a veteran glamour photographer, said it best when he said, "The rest of the kids are beer; Ruta is champagne."

When asked about her goals, Ruta replies, "Ten Oscars and one husband."

Who can have a better goal than that? Ruta sometimes plays a little bridge. In the play of today's grand slam Ruta combined her chances in two suits to record a well-deserved score.

1 ♣	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♠	Pass	5 NT	Pass
7 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

South opened one club, just short of an opening game demand bid. After North's jump raise and Blackwood inquiries, South's enormous reserves more than justified her grand slam bid. West led the diamond queen which Ruta won with her singleton king. A trump to dummy drew the outstanding trumps and a heart was discarded on the diamond ace.

Ruta was now faced with a choice of plays. She had 12 tricks in the bag and a successful finesse in either major suit would yield a thirteenth. Which finesse should she take?

Ruta wisely decided against either finesse. Instead she combined her chances in both major suits. Since she started with more hearts than spades she decided to first play for a doubleton heart queen and if that failed, to try for the spade finesse. In that way she could improve on the straight 50 per cent chance of either finesse.

When she played her ace and king of hearts, West obligingly produced the queen and Ruta's problems were over. Her heart jack was the thirteenth trick and the slam was scored.

Ruta's bridge philosophy is simple. "Why guess which suit to finesse in when you can delay any finesse until after you're sure it's needed."

Season for beauty

This season, one of the most varied and attractive fashion seasons in memory, can be a very special beauty time as well. The cosmetics industry is outdoing itself with imaginative new products.

Just a bit of imagination on the part of the wearer can have her fitting her face and mood to the costume. There are new ideas in skin nourishment and protection. Eye and lip beauty abound.

Ask about them at your favorite cosmetic counter. In the midst of the newness an old beauty standby stands out — witch hazel. Use the pure herbal extract as a freshener. Use it to tone the skin and close the pores before applying makeup.

Neighbors urged to fight city's proposal to widen Lawe Street

An Appleton alderman has issued a call to arms to Lawe and Meade Street property owners over proposals to rebuild and widen Lawe Street.

Ald. Walter Kalata (2nd) has distributed copies of a letter to residents on both streets urging them to fight Public Works Department proposals to widen Lawe from its present 32-foot width to 44 feet.

The department has stated that the greater width is needed to carry expected increases in traffic volume in the future, and to meet minimum federal standards to make the project eligible for construction aid funds.

Residents of the street, with Kalata's leadership, have opposed the widening

Obscene material transportation ban unconstitutional

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—A law against interstate transportation of obscene material was declared unconstitutional Thursday in U.S. District Court on the grounds it abridges a person's right to possess obscenity for non-commercial purposes.

Judge James E. Doyle dismissed a case against a distributing firm and four other defendants, accused of transporting "obscene, lewd, lascivious and filthy magazines" to Wausau.

Although the defendants' actions appeared to be commercially motivated, the fact that the federal law does not allow for non-commercial transportation of obscenity makes it unconstitutional, Doyle said.

He said the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 1969 that the First Amendment to the Constitution protects a person's right to possess obscene materials at home.

"I can see no rational basis to distinguish between non-commercial possession of an obscene book in one's home and non-commercial possession of an obscene book while traveling interstate in a plane, bus or train," Doyle said in a five-page opinion.

"A defendant is not limited to a challenge of the statute as applied to him, even though the alleged conduct attributed to him is conduct which could constitutionally be proscribed by a more narrowly drawn statute," Doyle added.

because it would mean cutting down terrace trees and out of fear that it will bring increased traffic past their homes.

In his letter, Kalata urged residents to express their opposition again during a hearing scheduled by the City Council's streets and sanitation committee on Oct. 2.

He also urged formation of a citizens' committee "for the purpose of lobbying the project as you have indicated you want it done."

That would include contacting all aldermen, the mayor, and residents of other wards to seek their support through their aldermen, Kalata explained. He announced he already has asked Mayor James Sutherland for support.

Kalata included residents of both Lawe and Meade in the distribution of the letter because as an alternative to widening Lawe, it has been proposed to repave both streets and make them a pair of one-way thoroughfares in opposite directions.

Kalata declared this to be "an artificial issue," and implied it is aimed at creating divisions between residents of the two streets. "It is apparent, however," he said, "if a neighborhood feud over streets can be initiated, our position in regard to Lawe Street will deteriorate."

He urged the Meade Street residents to back the Lawe Street group. "Remember, they may be able to help

State agency merger not working out, report says

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Administrative consolidation of the state Equal Rights Division and the Labor Standards Division has not been fully satisfactory, the Legislative Fiscal Bureau says.

In a report being submitted today to the Board on Government Operations, the bureau said the intentions behind the merger seemed desirable, and that program may work yet if given enough time.

But the bureau said it is "not entirely convinced that the reorganization will solve the basic problems and conflicts that exist."

It said it suspects objectives could have been achieved "with less drastic and damaging consequences" under an alternate process.

The divisions were consolidated April 17, and legislative criticism led you similarly in the future," he admonished.

"We may have to pass a hat up and down the street, to hire an attorney, and then go to court," he said.

"A final thought, and I may be criticized for this. If a 44-foot street is ultimately forced upon us, you may choose to be 'uncooperative' when the actual work is begun."

Kalata has submitted a resolution proposing reconstruction of the street at its present width. The resolution will be the topic of the Oct. 2 hearing.

"The Department of Public Works is hell bent to get their way and using every influence to gain approval of the plan which they are projecting," Kalata said. He accused the department of being unwilling to consider the wishes of Lawe Street residents.

Public Works Director Robert Miller, asked to comment on the charge, said, "We feel that the engineering facts dictate what is best for the community in this case. Certainly, we have to consider not only the people living along the street, but also the many thousands who drive that street every day."

Miller has met with Kalata and residents of Lawe a number of times to discuss the project, during informal meetings arranged by Kalata. Miller said the effort to arrange the meetings was to Kalata's credit, and added that the sessions have produced "an excellent exchange of ideas."

to a directive in June for the bureau to investigate.

The report said merger reflects a desire by commissioners of the Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations to reduce costs, increase bureau efficiency and obtain more aggressive enforcement of equal rights statutes.

The merger, the report said, seems to have created a personnel morale problem which might have been avoided by better communication between employees and supervisors.

There are signs of a lack of confidence in supervisors, the bureau continued.

The report cited what it calls a shortage of minority-group representation on division payrolls, saying the situation is contrary to the department's ideals.

Action expected on tighter controls for trade schools

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The State Educational Approval Board will take final action sometime next month on its set of proposed rules to stiffen controls over private, profit-making trade schools, Board Chairman William Bechtel has said.

Bechtel said the board, which aired the proposals at a public hearing earlier in the day, would take time to consider changes in its suggestion that schools be required to have a fee refund policy for students who discontinue course work.

The board's proposals would demand that schools refund tuition and fees on a prorated basis, less a 25 per cent fee charge, even when a student dropped out more than halfway through instruction.

That proposal drew fire from two trade school officials. A.F. Huete of the Patricia Stevens Career College and finishing school in Milwaukee, and J. Michael Bartels, assistant vice president of Manpower Inc., operator of the Manpower Business Training Institute in Milwaukee.

The rules would also require that schools seek annual board approval for continued operation, post a $25,000 surety bond to protect students against closedowns, and put an end to misleading advertising about job placements and career opportunities.

No-fault insurance only one factor in rates, lawyer says

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — There is more to reducing auto insurance rates than enacting a no-fault insurance plan, a state senate committee was told Monday.

"If you could pressure Detroit into making cars more crash-worthy and find a way of reducing repair costs, then you would really be saving the taxpayer money," Robert Habush, a Milwaukee attorney, told a hearing.

Habush said that bodily injury claims account for only about 25 per cent of insurance payments, while property damage claims account for more than half.

Gov. Patrick J. Lucey has called for a no-fault insurance plan to be readied for introduction in the legislature when it reconvenes in January, and has appointed a citizen's commission to do the job.

The hearing today, chaired by state Sen. Gerald Lorge, RBear Creek, who also sits on Lucey's commission, heard Habush and other attorneys urge adoption of a plan that does not restrict an accident victim's rights to go to court for pain and suffering.

Habush said a no-fault plan that insured prompt medical payments would be a sufficient deterrent to keeping accident cases out of court.

Lucey's task force on judicial organization has said most accident cases should be kept out of the court system to avoid overloaded court calendars.

Top-rated Trojans to duel Illini

The powerful Trojans of Southern California appear in little danger of losing their No. 1 ranking in the Associated Press college football poll when they play Illinois Saturday.

The unbeaten Trojans retained their top ranking Monday in this week's poll following their 51-6 rout of Oregon State. At the same time it was disclosed that quarterback Mike Wells was a doubtful starter for the Illini.

Wells reinjured a finger on his throwing arm in last week's losing game against Michigan State. Without him, the Illini offense will be greatly hampered. As a result the Trojans will be favored more than ever to make it three in a row.

In Monday's voting the Trojans received 28 first-place votes and 920 of a possible 1,000 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

The Oklahoma Sooners opened their season with a 49-0 trouncing of Utah State and took over second place with 11 firsts and 840 points.

Slips to third

Colorado slipped from second to third with 769 points followed by Ohio State at 622 and Tennessee at 615. Rounding out the Top Ten were UCLA, Alabama, Louisiana State, Nebraska and Arizona State.

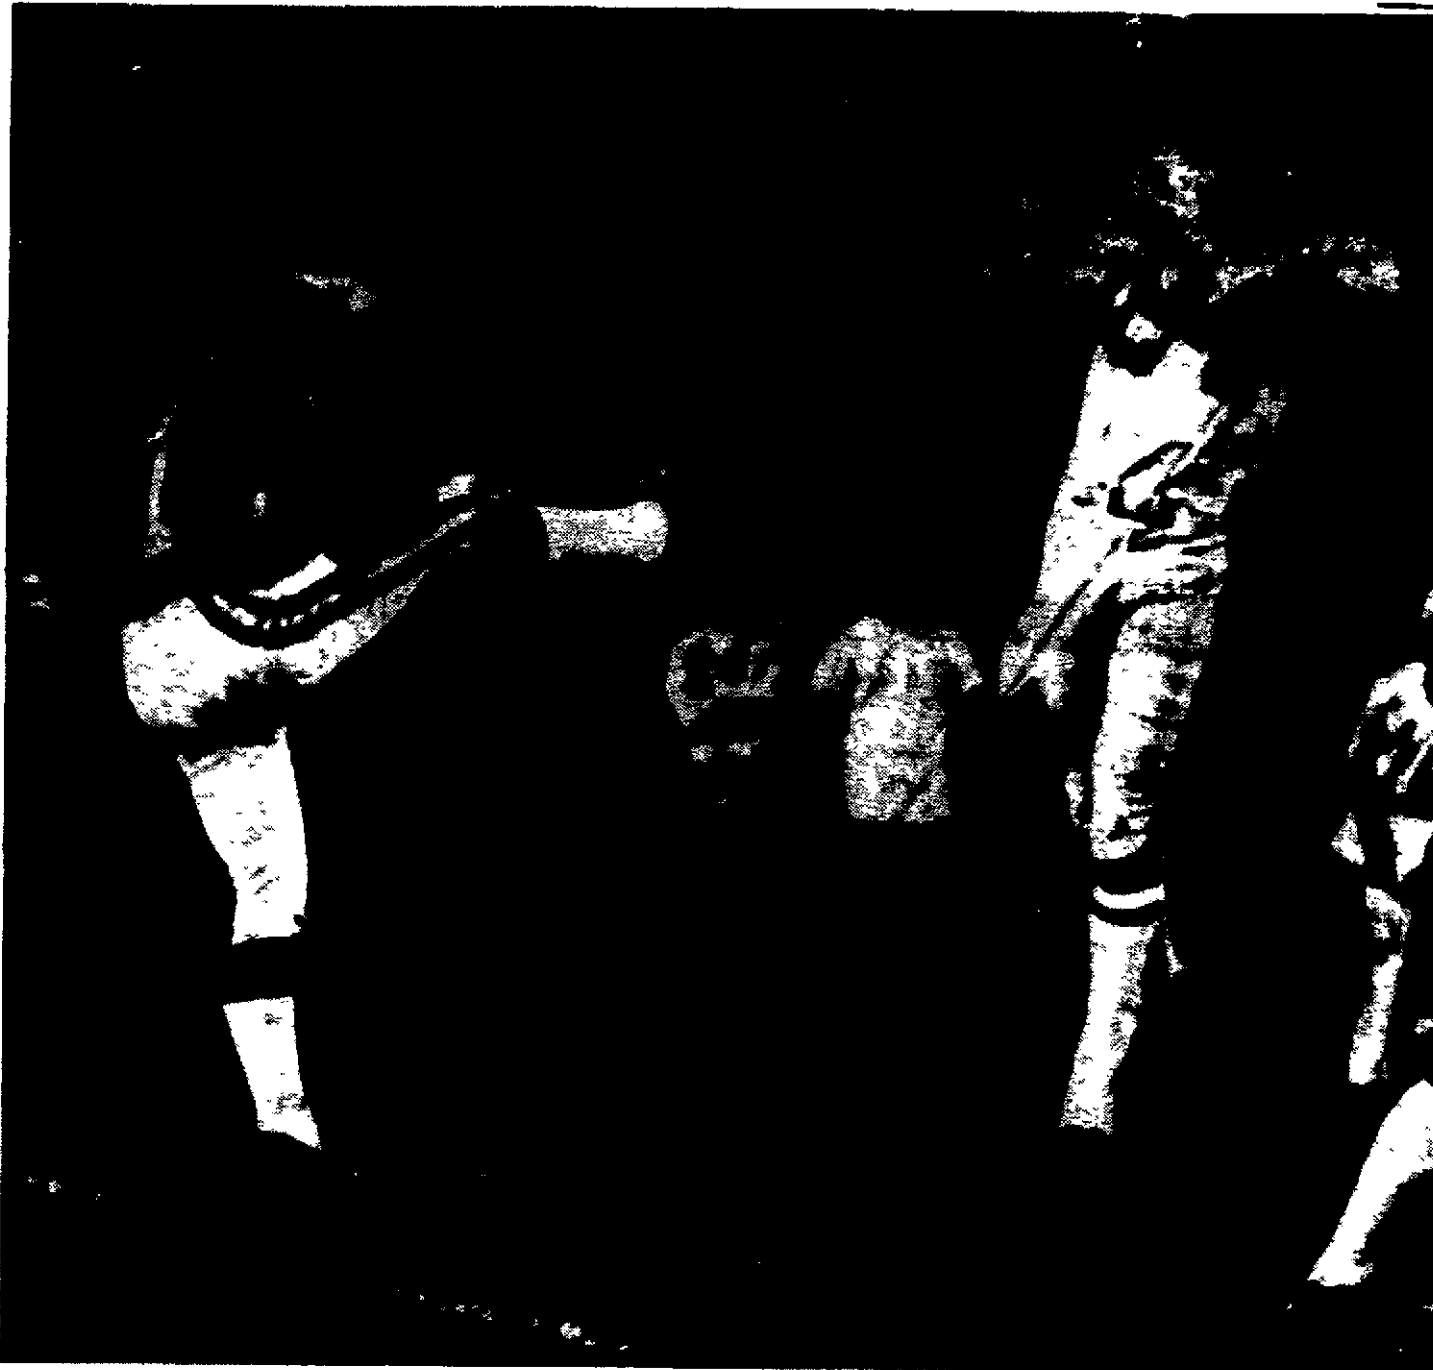

In addition to Southern Cal at Illinois other games this week involving the Top Twenty are:

Oregon at Oklahoma, Colorado at Minnesota, Wake Forest at Tennessee, Michigan at UCLA, Alabama vs. Kentucky at Birmingham, Texas A&M at Louisiana State, Nebraska at Army, Kansas State at Arizona State, Navy at Penn State, Notre Dame at Northwestern, Miami, Fla. at Texas, Washington at Purdue, Georgia at Tulane, Virginia Tech at Florida State, Georgia Tech at Michigan State, Stanford at Duke and Mississippi at South Carolina. Ohio State has an open date.

The Top Twenty teams, with first place votes in parentheses, season records and total points. Points based on 20 16 14 12 10 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1.

1. Southern California (28)	20	920
2. Oklahoma (11)	10	840

Punt backfires

Bill Malinchak (24), of the Redskins, blocks the punt by Minnesota Vikings' Mike Eischeid in the first quarter of Monday night's National Football Conference game in Minnesota.

Malinchak picked up the ball and scored for the Redskins. Washington defeated the Vikings, 24-21. (AP Wirephoto).

Malinchak makes big play

Redskins top Vikings

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — Bill Malinchak draws his National Football League salary chasing kickoffs and punts, charging the kickers and punters.

The seven-year veteran from Indiana, on the taxi squad last week, earned his paycheck Monday night as the Washington Redskins toppled the Minnesota Vikings 24-21 in a regular season opener.

"I had faith that I would be activated because that's what I did last year and that's something the coach emphasizes," Malinchak said.

Malinchak blocked a punt, picked it up and ran for a touchdown. He recovered a fumble that led to the winning touchdown, and was on the field when teammate Ted Vactor blocked a field goal and deflected another.

"This is what a special teams' player always works for," said Malinchak. "It's something that rarely happens. But if you get a couple or three a year the special team has done its job."

Malinchak, a reserve wide receiver, was cut by the Detroit Lions two years ago this week and then caught on with the Redskins.

"I would rather not talk about it (Lions' cut)," he said. "It's something I would rather forget."

Malinchak's touchdown came on Minnesota's first series of the game. The fumble recovery came on the kickoff after Larry Brown, who rushed for 105 yards on 21 carries, rolled in for a three-yard touchdown to give Washington a 17-14 lead with 12:52 to play.

Just 85 seconds later, Charley Harraway swept left end for a nine-yard touchdown run that put it away for the Redskins.

Asked why Malinchak was activated just a week after he was placed on waivers, Washington Coach George Allen said:

"Because he's a good special teams man."

The Vikings outgained the Redskins 382 yards to 203 in total offense. Fran Tarkenton fired touchdown passes of 11 yards to John Gilliam, who made a spectacular one-handed falling catch

It's possible Packers are ahead of schedule, says pleased Devine

BY LEE REMMEL

Post-Crescent New Service

GREEN BAY — Could the Packers be ahead of schedule?

An impeccably attired Dan Devine, making an off-the-cuff assessment, cautiously conceded that pleasant possibility Monday during a sprightly, post-projection room analysis of Sunday's 26-10 victory over the Cleveland Browns.

"I hope that's what it is," Devine said of the surprisingly solid triumph which got his team off to a positive start in the National Football Conference's Central Division race. "Coaches, of course, are more apprehensive than fans are."

"I'm hoping we have jelled. If we have, we're ahead of schedule because I didn't believe we had enough experienced players to have jelled into a unit at this point. If they have, there's nobody more pleased than I am."

Be that as it may, Devine emphasized there will be no easy way, no short cuts for his team. He is convinced a relentless, all-out effort every week of the season will be the inevitable prize of survival and/or success.

Or, in other words, the same kind the Packers mounted Sunday in Cleveland, which he described as "another great effort. . . It's obvious even in the film."

A hard time

"Had we not had it, I don't think we could have won. Because, physically, their defensive people gave our offense people a hard time, up and down the line."

More of the same, he cautioned, lies ahead for his athletes.

"It's going to be tough for this team to bounce back physically," DD asserted. "We have to cut down on our practice time, even though we need it so badly."

"We've got a lot of guys nicked up. We're playing the two smallest centers in the league, of course, Ken Bowman

Brooks keys Oriole win

By HAL ROCK -- Associated Press Sports Writer

If there were an unabridged dictionary for baseball, you'd find a simple definition for "money players." The synonym would be "Brooks Robinson."

Baltimore's defending American League champions journeyed to Boston for the start of a must series against the Red Sox Monday night and Robinson gave them the jump, drilling three hits to pace a 5-2 Oriole victory.

It was a typical performance for the Orioles' old pro third baseman, who's always at his best in the clutch ball games.

Robinson had two singles and a double, scoring two runs and driving in another for the Orioles, now one game back of idle Detroit which took over the East lead. Boston is squeezed into second place, one-half game behind, while the idle New York Yankees remained fourth, 2½ games off the pace.

In Monday's other games on an abbreviated major league schedule, Cincinnati inched closer to the National League West crown by topping San Francisco 2-0. Pittsburgh's NL East clinching remained stalled with New York edging the Pirates 1-0. In the only other game played, Los Angeles edged San Diego 3-2 in 10 innings.

Cincinnati's victory reduced the Reds' magic number to five while the Pirates' fourth straight loss left their clinching number at three.

"We're just in a position where we can't lose," said Robinson. "you've got to fight like there's no tomorrow."

The Birds were trailing 1-0 in the fourth when Robinson opened with a double and scored the tying run on Dave Johnson's triple. Two innings later, the Birds had the lead with Robinson's single helping build the rally and Johnny Oates' double driving home one run and two-out single by pitcher Pat Dobson delivering the other.

Two more runs scored in the seventh, one on Don Baylor's pinch single and the other on Robinson's third hit of the game.

Johnny Bench gave San Francisco a taste of versatility as the Reds shut out the Giants.

First, the Cincinnati slugger crashed his 34th home run of the year for the first run of the game in the fourth inning. Then, two innings later, Bench shifted to his short ball offense, dumping a perfect squeeze bunt down the third base line to score Joe Morgan.

Jim McGlothlin surrendered eight hits in the first five innings but his shutout was preserved by outfielders Cesar Geronimo and Pete Rose who both threw out Giant runners on the basepaths. Clay Carroll pitched the ninth to complete the shutout.

The Mets got five-hit pitching from rookie Jon Matlack to beat Pittsburgh.

Matlack, 13-9, outduelled Nijlil Briles, 14-8, with the game's only run-scoring in the ninth inning on a single by Duffy Dyer. Rusty Staub, playing only his second game since June for New York, started the winning rally with a single.

Four 10th inning walks, the last one to Willie Crawford with two out, forced home the winning run as Los Angeles nipped San Diego.

Frank Robinson hit his 19th homer for the Dodgers and No. 522 for his career, moving into seventh place ahead of Ted Williams on the alltime list. It was also the 30th major league park in which the veteran slugger has homered, extending his own record.

Sonics' Smith joins Rockets in cash deal

SEATTLE (AP) — Don Smith, 6-foot-10 Seattle SuperSonic forward, has been traded to the Houston Rockets of the National Basketball Association for an "undisclosed amount of cash."

General Manager Bob Hourbrege earlier had said negotiations with Smith had reached the no-return stage. Smith reportedly was asking $150,000 a year.

Smith, who came to the Sonics for the 1970-71 season, flew to Houston Monday for practice. The deal involved selling the rights to Smith's contract, which had gone unsigned, Sonics officials said.

Rockets, Bulldogs, Truckers, Marion cement contender status

BY DAN VANDERPAS and ROGER PITT

Post-Crescent Staff Writers

Neenah, New London, Marion and Clintonville all took steps which solidified their positions as title challengers in key games with other contenders last weekend.

The Rockets had to rally late in the game behind the play of reserve running back Frank Douglas to pull out a 13-7 verdict over Kimberly.

Clintonville pulled a stunning upset in the Bay Conference as the Truckers dealt previously unbeaten De Pere a 27-12 defeat and hiked their own record to 2-1 — good enough for a 5-way tie behind unbeaten leader Oconto Falls.

New London salvaged a tie with Berlin, 22-22, after holding a 22-8 lead after three quarters. The Bulldogs 1-0-1 in the ECC improved their status as a darkhorse with their showing against the highly-touted Indians.

Marion salvaged an 8-8 tie with pre-season Central Wisconsin Conference pick Manawa after spotting the Wolves an 8-0 lead and then losing control of the ball on an on-side kick.

Injuries marred Neenah's last-minute victory over the Papermakers. Rocket running back Lorin Cole, who suffered a knee injury after completing a left end sweep, is out for the season. He had surgery Monday. But Abbie Goerlitz is expected to be ready for action this weekend.

"We're down to five lettermen," Neenah mentor Gary Parker said. "And guys like Joe Meixl and Chris Gilling have to play both ways . . . I'd like to give them some rest, but it just can't be done."

"Kimberly has a fine well-coached ball club," Parker said, "they should have a real fine season from here on."

Douglas, who replaced Cole in the backfield, completed two option passes late in the game and plunged for the decisive 3-yard TD. In regard to the junior reserve's performance, Parker noted, "He came through in real fine fashion. He'll start for Cole next week."

Marion coach Ted Verges was elated by the performance of his defense as the Mustangs battled the Wolves to a deadlock.

"Sophomore Ron Polzin, who made 15 tackles, and little Doug Arndt, with 12 solos, played fine games," he said. "And Pat McInnis, recovering from an injury, did extremely well."

"I think we're getting progressively tougher," Clintonville tactician Chet Jurkovic said. "A couple of our individuals were really outstanding against De Pere. John Heiderscheid (a 230 pounder) is one of the best kickers around. He set a school record with a 45-yard field goal. I think we're a threat anytime we get inside the 30."

"Mike Hanson is a potential all-star," Jurkovic said. "He's small (155 pounds) but he's extremely quick." Last week Hanson scored three times, and gained 121 yards in 24 carries. He has eight TDs and 340 yards rushing in three games.

Jurkovic feels his team's next opponent, Marinette, is a top contender for honors in the Bay Conference. "It should be one whale of a game," he said.

The veteran coach, who was the subject of a controversial story about his coaching job being on the line early last week, commented, "I think it was all blown out of proportion."

"The tie won't hurt us," New London's Jack Wohlt said. "Of course the team was down after having control of the game almost from the start and then having Berlin make a drive in the last 7:45 and scoring with 15 seconds left."

"I think their disappointment was only temporary . . . it only means we'll have to win the rest of our games," the young Bulldog master said.

"Maybe we got too conservative in the second half. Berlin had a real good pass defense and we tried to control the ball on the ground. We had about three penalties that really hurt in the last quarter. We'd be in pretty good position and then a penalty would take it away from us."

"Mark (end Mark Egland) was open quite a bit but we didn't get the ball to him," Wohlt analyzed. "When we get the ball to him things begin to happen." Wohlt also cited the play of linebackers Lenny Markman and Bruce Kloehn. "I've been real happy with our defense so far. . . it's really been coming through. We held Hortonville to 137 yards and gave Berlin 149."

"It's a good problem to have," Wohlt said of trying to choose a regular quarterback between senior Rick Kaepnick and junior Jim Snyder. "We try to give each of them enough playing time so the team is accustomed to both. That way we are protected in case of an injury."

Wohlt views the remaining East Central schedule as being tough down the line and the race being wide open. He considers Ripon, Waupaca and Omdo—all upcoming NL opponents—as title-contenders in addition to Berlin.

"We'll have to play every game one at a time," he said.

UWGB given hope but no funds for graduate programs

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON —The University of Wisconsin-Green Bay can begin planning for master's degree level programs during the coming biennium — but with no promise that such programs will be approved.
 That is the proposal of the central administration of the University of Wisconsin System, and it is likely to be approved by the full board of regents in budget deliberations later this week.
 The recommendation marks a significant step forward for the UWGB, as the entire UW system is currently being held to no new program approvals for

Complete or halted, range to be costly

WAUKESHA, Wis. (AP) — The state may have to repay $66,000 to the government unless work is completed on a disputed target range in southern Waukesha County, legislators were told Monday.
 But completion of the project as outlined in an application filed with the government may cost an additional $145,000 compared with an original construction estimate of $132,000, a state engineer said.
 The information was presented during a hearing by the Assembly's Natural Resources Committee, which is studying reports of rising costs and unsatisfactory construction.
 Cost estimates for the McMiller Sportsmen's Center near Eagle for firearms fans rose from $132,000 to $166,000. An investigation was ordered as the estimate continued to climb, to $193,000.
 Laurence F. Motl, director of the Natural Resources Department's engineering bureau, told the hearing that federal matching funds may have to be repaid unless the state meets a requirement of completing the project.
 Gordon Mross, a Waukesha consulting engineer, says the center could eventually cost $400,000, Motl said.
 The program was begun by Waukesha and Milwaukee counties and by the department, each contributing $22,000 and expecting the government to match the contributions.
 Motl and Ralph Culbertson, chief engineer for the state Administration Department, said it wasn't clear which agency has the final responsibility for the center's design.
 Nor could inquisitive members of the Assembly committee learn who attended what they were told was a meeting of county spokesmen and Natural Resources Department representatives in July, 1970, during which portions of the plan were reportedly deleted without approval of the Natural Resources Board.
 Construction of the center was suspended in October. Questions about the project were subsequently raised by state Rep. Edward Jackamonis, D-Waukesha.

Longer period favored for studded snow tires

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Testimony in a public hearing on studded snow tires Thursday favored longer periods in which they can be used.
 Arthur Wichern of the American Automobile Association's Wisconsin Division told state Motor Vehicle Division officials he favored use of the tires for "the longest possible period."
 Wisconsin's 309,000 AAA members are split on the studded tie issue, Wichern said. But he indicated the association would prefer that the tires be allowed on the road this year starting Nov. 15.
 State rules now allow use of the tires from Nov. 10 through March 15. The Motor Vehicle Division has

Warren probe hit by state administrator

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A spokesman for Gov. Patrick J. Lucey has suggested Republican Atty. Gen. Robert Warren not launch his own separate investigation into state leasing and purchasing practices.
 Joe E. Nusbaum, secretary of the Department of Administration, Thursday said an investigation headed by a "partisan and elected official" would only tend to confuse efforts to determine whether improper practices exist.
 Nusbaum said he had received two letters concerning an investigating Warren was initiating.
 "As you must know," Nusbaum told Warren, "Gov. Lucey has appointed a commission headed by former Supreme Court Justice George Currie to investigate leasing and purchase and sale of properties for the state."
 "An offer on your part to assist the commission would appear to be much more productive," Nusbaum said.
 "Nevertheless, if you decide to proceed with a separate investigation, you may be assured that this department will fully cooperate."

the present, pending a complete revamping of the program approval process in light of last year's merger of the two state university systems.
 The budget recommendations of the central administration state clearly that the Green Bay campus can go ahead with its own background planning if it wishes — but adds that the consent is granted "without prejudice."
 That means that the conditional approval of planning is being granted with the clear understanding that there is no promise that master's level work will be eventually approved.

Produced quality results
 But master's degree work is "consistent" with the goal of the group of 11 state campuses that the UWGB is a part of, and the Green Bay faculty has "demonstrated an ability to produce quality research results," the budget document adds promisingly.
 The advance planning of the background of master's degree programs will have to be funded out of a reallocation of funds in the UWGB budget, the central administration cautioned.
 The central administration also pointed out that the Green Bay campus has shown a special interest and ability in community sciences and human biology, and the central administration "will take this into account in reviewing any future graduate studies development," the budget related.
 UWGB had requested $240,500 for the establishment of master's level programs during the coming two years. No funding was supplied, but the administration went out of its way to give that explanation. Green Bay Chancellor Edward Weidner said that the statement means that the campus "will be coming off as well as we ever could have expected," in light of the hold on the creation of new academic programs now in effect.

The Green Bay campus would receive some budget hikes in 1973-75, if the central administration recommendation is fully approved by the regents. Proposed additions include:
 — $50,000 for additional instructional media services, all that was requested by the campus.
 — $74,400 to put field stations in operation, the full request of the campus.

Funding realigned
 Programs including reformatory instruction, off campus credit, a microwave interconnection and a center for the physically handicapped were either shifted to the systemwide budget or proposed for funding out of a reallocation of existing resources.
 UW-Oshkosh would receive $313,800 for increased telephone and computer service costs under the budget recommendations. Turned down by the central administration were requests for funding for new courses "demanded by minorities," student services, and faculty funding adjustments.
 A comprehensive general education program was proposed for funding at $549,000, about half of the total asked by the campus. A new extended degree program was shifted into the systemwide budget.
 Regents are expected to act on the budget proposals Friday or Saturday.

proposed an amendment to allow use from Dec. 1 to April 1.
 Department of Natural Resources Secretary L.P. Voigh has said he supports a Nov. 15 starting date—so hunters will be able to use them during deer season.
 State Rep. Michael Early, D-River Falls, told the hearing he favors a Nov. 15 to April 1 season for the tires.
 "We really have some winter," Early said of his northwestern Wisconsin district. "There are some places where it's really impossible to travel without studded tires."
 Also favoring an earlier opening date were W.A. Wilson of the Wisconsin tire dealers and Oliver Kesenich, Dane County chairman of the Wisconsin Conservation Congress.
 Karl Dunn, research engineer for the Division of Highways, opposed early use of studded tires, citing studies which said they could cause as much as $306 million in highway damages over a 25 year period.

Being prepared

Schools in the Valley Council, Boy Scouts of America, are getting ready for the annual School Night for Scouting, which will be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday. Getting a head start with their literature at St. Therese School, Appleton, are Dan Kohl, left, a Cub Scout, and Scott Burton, a Boy Scout, who hand out the first brochures to Pat Commo, right, and Mark Heuring. The purpose of the night is to inform the boys and their parents about Scouting activities. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Spend more for job hunt, less on staffing, state agency told

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The Wisconsin version of the Federal Work Incentive program (WIN) should spend less money on staff and more on jobs, a spokesman for Gov. Patrick J. Lucey says.
 "What we need is to get people jobs," the state secretary of administration, Joe E. Nusbaum, told the Board on Government Operations.
 Nusbaum presented Lucey's point of view Monday on a Department of Health and Social Services request for 14 new employees to provide social services for persons enrolled in WIN, a welfare-oriented manpower program.

The board accepted Lucey's recommendation that five professional and two clerical positions be authorized to help in the program for the remainder of the fiscal year.
 It also accepted Lucey's recommendation that the state attempt to get federal concurrence on a shift in WIN program emphasis toward jobs.
 Lucey asked that the state seek federal approval of "substantial reductions in staff" for the WIN program, with salary savings put into on-the-job training programs.
 Nusbaum said there are more than 400 professionals helping administer the WIN program in Wisconsin.

Extra funds approved for AFDC recipients

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Welfare recipients won approval Monday of increased payments for special household needs under programs for aid to families with dependent children (AFDC).
 The Board on Government Operations agreed 3-2 to allow the Department of Health and Social Services to spend an extra $2.4 million annually for "special needs," such as clothing which recipients said children need for attending school.
 "I don't think that the strongest of the antiwelfare people thinks that we should not provide clothing for children," Sen. Carl Thompson, D-Stoughton, said.
 Republican Sen. John Shabaz of New Berlin said he will demand Democratic Gov. Patrick J. Lucey veto the appropriation.
 "To do otherwise would be hypocritical," Shabaz said, citing Lucey's appeal to legislative candidates to join a campaign against tax increases in the 1973-75 fiscal biennium.

Shabaz said in a memo to Lucey that to refuse to veto the aid "would reveal that your pledge to halt further tax increases is a meaningless campaign promise."
 He was among a group of Republican legislators who, earlier in the day, had censured Lucey's anti-tax appeal.
 AFDC recipients have been campaigning for a revision of "special needs" guidelines after a 1971 budget rule outlined parity of allowances for AFDC and aid to the disabled and elderly.
 The new "special needs" decision would allow extra funds for cleaning and mending garments, telephone bills, water bills and garbage collection.
 Qualification for the special aid would be supervised by case workers and county welfare officials.
 The government is expected to pay 54 per cent of the extra cost. The state would pay 25 per cent, and counties would be responsible for 21 per cent.
 Recipients had been allowed an extra $15 per child in August to help prepare youngsters for school.
 "My kids need clothes," a woman told the board. "I can go around in T-shirts and jeans, but my kids need clothes to go to schools."
 Spokesmen said recipients appreciate the August allowance, and earlier approval of special aid for beds.
 But the family welfare budget is still too small for sheets and clothing, a Milwaukee woman said.
 Under a policy adopted by the Republican-controlled 1969 legislature, special allowances were curtailed.

 Special needs since then have been available in various sums of up to $13 a month, depending on family sizes.
 Under the new policy, a family eligible for $9 and needing $20 could get $11 extra.
 Shabaz struggled to get the revision set aside by resorting to parliamentary procedure.
 One of his efforts was defeated 4-2, and another was overruled by the board chairman, Republican Sen. Walter Hollander of Rosendale.
 He and Hollander voted against the policy change. Voting for it were Thompson, Democratic Rep. George Molinaro of Kenosha and Democratic Rep. Lloyd Barbee of Milwaukee.
 Democratic Rep. Herbert Grover of Shawano stepped out of the meeting room prior to the final vote.

Parking fines to be enforced

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The minimum $20 parking fine included in a Wisconsin law scheduled to take effect Oct. 1 will not supercede local parking ordinances, a spokesman for the state's attorney general's office said Friday.
 "A cursory examination of the law by staff attorneys has determined that there's enough room within the law for retaining the local option," said Daniel Hanley, executive assistant to Atty. Gen. Robert Warren.
 Milwaukee's city attorney, James Brennan, said the section of the statutes revised by the Uniform Traffic Court Procedure Act seemed to say that the right of local governments to set their own penalties had been revoked. But he said another long standing section of the law, which was not changed, still leaves parking tickets to local governments.
 The ordinance enforcement officer in Brennan's office, Theophilus Crockett, had said Wednesday he read the statute's language as creating a statewide minimum fine of $20 for a first parking offense, and a $50 minimum for a second offense within a year.
 Milwaukee County Court Judge Louis Ceci said Friday that judges who handle traffic cases in Milwaukee, Dodge, Washington, Ozaukee, Racine, Jefferson, Sheboygan and Waukesha Counties took a position similar to Brennan when they discussed the situation Thursday at Menomonee Falls.

Bucks plan to speed up attack

WAUKESHA, Wis. (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar became one of the world's highest paid athletes when he recently signed a new contract with the Milwaukee Bucks. But his working conditions aren't likely to improve.

Although the Bucks acquired backup center Dick Cunningham from Houston Monday, Abdul-Jabbar is expected to approach his workload of last year when he played in all but one of Milwaukee's 82 games, averaging 44 minutes a game.

Moreover, the Bucks plan to speed up their attack this year, so his duty could be even more grueling.

"That's all right if I get some rest, either some help or some rest," the brilliant 7-foot-2 center said at Carroll College, where the Bucks are training for the National Basketball Association season.

The Bucks expect help from Cunningham, a bruising rebounder at 6-foot-10 and 250 pounds.

Cunningham was with the Bucks from 1969-70 until traded to Houston a year ago.

"We're very happy to have Dick back as our reserve center," general manager Wayne Embury said. "Not only do we gain a backup center, but now we free Toby Kimball to compete for a tough rebounding forward spot."

The Los Angeles Lakers stepped up their attack last year and dethroned the Bucks as NBA champions. Coach Larry Costello is adopting the Lakers' tactics this season.

"We relied too much on Kareem instead of running," Costello said. "We let teams stay with us a little too long last year, so we had to play hard at the end."

"If Kareem and Curtis get the ball for us, we've got the shooters if we run intelligently and use good judgment," he said.

Since a running game can't work without a good big man to get the ball, Abdul-Jabbar may be asked to rebound even harder than last year when he averaged nearly 17 sweeps a game in addition to scoring a league-leading 2,622 points.

"The major impact of the change will be on Kareem," forward Bob Dandridge said.

"It's my job and I have professional pride," Abdul-Jabbar said. "All I can do is try. I'm going to play any way the coach thinks it should be played."

"I'm not interested in records, only in winning ball games and helping the team win," he said. "I'm not worried about records. I just do the best I can. If you try to get psyched up every time, you're going to become emotionally unstable."

Abdul-Jabbar believes running teams create more opportunities for themselves.

"Certain teams run more, like Boston and L.A. That's how they play," he said. "LA's basic offense is not that good, but they get by on their ability to run."

Abdul-Jabbar spent the summer taking an eight-unit, sevenweek course in elementary literary Arabic in Harvard University's Near Eastern Studies program.

"I took it for reasons of my faith and curiosity," he said. "It will apply to my master's degree if I can get into a master's program. It is a base I would have to have, but right now the future is an open book."

Abdul-Jabbar said he "most definitely" was satisfied with his new four-year contract, which gives the Bucks an option on his services for a fifth year.

His original contract, which called for an estimated $1.4 million, had two years to run.

"It's very fair, excellent," he said. Costello thinks the Bucks will need a top performance from Abdul-Jabbar and everyone else because, in his opinion, just about every team in the league has improved.

"It used to be you played Buffalo or Cleveland you pretty much expected to win, but that's not true anymore," Costello said.

"We had a good season last year. I don't think we were over complacent. We just got beat," he said.

"Los Angeles had a super season, but I don't think the Lakers will win as many games this year because the whole league is tougher," he said. "Last year I don't think we took advantage of all the talent we had."

The Bucks will test their new strategy Friday against one of the NBA's most run-conscious teams, the Boston Celtics, in their first exhibition game at Montreal.

Katie Steffen and Yvonne Scherer rolled 204 games and Mary Ellen Koepel a 202 in the Bent Sabre League at Sabre Lanes.

Woman golf star, Sandy Palmer, files law suit against LPGA

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — One of professional golf's top women money winners has filed suit against the Ladies Professional Golf Association in U.S. District Court here asking that the LPGA be ordered to stop interfering with her "freedom of speech and pursuit of her chosen profession."

Sandra Palmer, reprimanded by the association last month for coming to the defense of Jane Blalock in her dispute with the LPGA, filed the suit Friday.

The association and its officers, the LPGA Tournament Players Corp.,

LPGA executive director E. M. "Bud" Erickson and tournament director Gene McCauliff III are charged in the suit with "detracting or conspiring to detract her, by intimidation or threat, from testifying" on Miss Blalock's behalf.

Miss Palmer was put on one year's probation Aug. 2 by the LPGA executive committee, and was told not to make any statements that would reflect on the association, the suit says.

Don Zimmer rehired as manager of San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Don Zimmer, unable to lead the San Diego Padres out of the National League West cellar in his managerial debut this season, will get another change next year.

Zimmer was rehired Monday for the 1973 season by Padre president E.J. "Buzze" Bavasi. Zimmer marked the occasion by getting thrown out of the game against Los Angeles. The Dodgers won, 3-2.

Rozelle notes drawbacks

Opinions aired on stadium replay

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — At least one official of the Superdome project here feels National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle should do a re-think on his objections to giant instant-replay television screens in the huge stadium.

"It's hard not to recognize that two stadiums already have the television facilities," William Connick, secretary-treasurer of the stadium commission, said Monday.

Rozelle and officials of the New Orleans Saints have said they could see problems arising from the instant replay plan.

Rozelle said Saturday he is opposed to instant replays in modern stadiums except at halftimes and after the games.

"There could be serious consequence otherwise," he said.

"There is the chance of an undesirable fan reaction which could result if controversial plays are shown," Dick Gordon, executive vice president of the Saints said Monday.

Six giant screens—22 by 26 feet each—have been proposed for the stadium. Connick alluded to "certain economic advantages to be recognized from the television screens, as well as the boon to kibitzers."

"We think it will come to pass," Connick said. "It opens up areas for theatrical productions, closed-circuit prize fights and things of that nature. Rozelle did not refer directly to the Superdome in issuing his condemnation of instant replay in stadiums. The new Arrowhead Stadium in Kansas City has one screen capable of showing instant replays, and Rozelle has ruled similarly on that."

Rozelle also said Saturday that some thought had been given to using TV cameras as an aid to officials, but that he felt the time it would take to review films would slow the pace of the game too much.

He added that the plan had been junked because it "would need a number of cameras and this would not be economically feasible."

Injuries stop 2 Badgers

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin reported two football players have been sidelined as a result of injuries inherited from Saturday's 31-7 victory over Northern Illinois.

Left guard Bob Braun is out indefinitely with an injured left knee, and reserve tailback Tim Austin has a neck injury which will keep him idle, at least for this week's game against Syracuse.

Junior Mike Becker practiced Monday as Braun's replacement, and Tony Davis, having recovered from a preseason knee injury, joined those bidding for Austin's position.

Kenosha won it, with a 78. Elmer

Madsen, Green Bay, was second with

Three golfers tied for Class B honors, with 84s. They are West Allis' Ed Polakowski and Green Bay's Mike Kerin and Bob DuFour.

In Class C, Waukesha's Tom Stoll carded an 85 to beat Sheboygan's Marvin Schueffner by one stroke. Green Bay's Jim Sloan won in Class D, with a 93.

Whitewater's Harley Chatfield hit an 82 to take honors in the retired category, while Ken Darby of New Berlin, won the freshman flight, with an 86.

Kenosha won the team title, with a 4-man score of 331, two shots better than that of Green Bay.

Garlits, Ivo top dragsters

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Don Garlits and Tommy Ivo are regarded as two top drivers in the AA-Fuel Dragster division, but Carl Olson beat them both in the U.S. Open Drag Championships.

Olson pushed his Chryslerpowered dragster to a run of 6.26 seconds at a speed of 221.67 miles per hour over the quarter-mile strip to beat Ivo Monday in the rain-delayed finals.

Sunday, before a storm postponed the championship runs, Olson beat Garlits with the best elapsed time, 6.22 seconds.

Performance was tops offensively

Ferguson cited as loop's best

CHICAGO (AP) — Rufus "Roadrunner" Ferguson, one of the most exciting runners in Wisconsin history, has been named the Big Ten's Top player on offense this week by the Associated Press.

Ferguson, who holds practically all of Wisconsin's rushing records cut loose again Saturday to lead the Badgers to a 31-7 triumph over Northern Illinois.

"Roadrunner" carried the ball 17 times for 165 yards including touchdown romps of 52 and 20 yards.

"Ferguson was just tremendous," said Badger Coach John Jardine. "We were making mistakes in the third quarter and he just ran all over the place and stuck the ball in the end zone."

Ferguson, a 21-year-old senior who is 5-6 and 190 pounds, set Wisconsin records of 211 yards in one game last year and a season total of 1,222 yards.

Ferguson is enrolled in Pre-Business and was a unanimous first choice for the All-Academic Big Ten team.

Indiana's 27-23 triumph over Minnesota produced a couple of other outstanding performances. John King of Minnesota gained 174 yards in 22 carries while Indiana quarterback Ted McNulty completed 17 of 29 passes for 198 yards.

Cornerback Bill Simpson of Michigan State was named the defensive player of the week for his exploits in Saturday's 24-0 victory over Illinois.

in the third period for a 14-10 lead, and of 4 yards to Bill Brown with 1:10 remaining in the game. Clint Jones scored from a yard out in the second period.

"Giving up two fumbles a blocked punt, a missed field goal, a blocked field goal—the accumulation of that was too much to overcome," said Vikings Coach Bud Grant. "I don't care how much offense you have."

The Vikings, leading 14-10, drove to the Washington 20, where 15-year man Jack Pardee recovered Oscar Reed's fumble.

After an exchange of downs, the Redskins mounted a 58-yard drive ending with Brown's TD run. Bill Kilmer, who completed only seven of 17 passing attempts for 57 yards, hit three straight on the drive, all to Roy Jefferson. A pass interference call against Bob Bryant, guarding Jefferson, gave the Redskins the ball at the three.

Curt Knight's 30-yard field goal put the Redskins into a 107 lead with 1:02 left in the first half. The Vikings scrambled back to field goal range, but Vactor smothered the 44-yard attempt by Fred Cox.

Cox was wide from 22 yards out as Vactor got a hand on the ball in the first period.

Malinchak said he just brushed by a blocker before knocking down Mike Eischeid's punt at the 16.

"We thought we could get a good shot at it because their ends weren't blocking strong in the beginning," Malinchak said.

Allen, who has never lost an opener in his seven years as an NFL coach, calls the game "a total team victory. The team showed a lot of character by coming from behind in the second half in beating a championship team in its own backyard."

The Redskins return to Washington to meet the St. Louis Cardinals Sunday. The Vikings travel to Detroit to try to post their ninth straight victory in their series with the Lions.

Viking Bench sets kickoff get-together

Lawrence University's Viking Bench will hold a get-together Thursday to kick off the football and cross country season. The gathering, to be held at 8:30 p.m. in the Calder Center of the Institute of Paper Chemistry. As an added feature this year, Viking Bench members also will be given an opportunity to use the facilities of Alexander Gymnasium preceding the get-together, (6-8 p.m.).

Football coach Ron Roberts will preview the Vikings' prospects for the season, which opens Saturday at Knox College.

Ron Traver, a 1960 Lawrence graduate who is filling in this season for Coach Gene Davis who is on a first term sabbatical, will outline the cross country team's prospects.

Persons interested in becoming members of the Viking Bench may attend the get-together in the Calder Center or may join by calling the office in Alexander Gymnasium. A membership costs $3 per year.

There's appropriate time to signal turn

This feature is one of a weekly series bringing together questions about Wisconsin transportation — and especially how you can drive more safely, for yourself and others — as asked by motorists, together with authoritative answers as given for informed members of the agencies involved. It is presented as a public service to our readers.

Q: In your column a couple of weeks ago, you dealt with a situation where a motorist, planning to make a right turn, wondered about the appropriate signaling procedure when several other turnoffs were available before his intersection. You answered that other drivers, who anticipated his turning and entered the main road before he turned, were wrong since they were required to yield the right-of-way to motorists already on the street. The original question also stated that motorists from behind would be confused because they weren't sure which right turn would be negotiated. I've been in this type of situation many times and a solution that always seems to work is to slow down, tap the brakes several times, and do not signal the right turn until just before it is made. This alerts motorists from behind that you're planning a change of some kind as well as drivers planning to enter the main road from access roads. I think this system is much better than leaving the right turn signal on when several exits are available and other motorists, cyclists and pedestrians have no idea which one is to be used.

A: We don't like to knock an idea that has been proven to be workable and efficient, but your system, even though it has worked so far, does not seem to us to be the safest method of handling this situation.

Your technique of slowing down, tapping the brakes several times and then signaling the turn immediately before it is negotiated would not convey an impression of confident driving to other highway users. The fact that they may be alerted to your "something's coming" impression is not necessarily a compliment — they might feel that you are not really sure of what you're about to do.

We stand by our original advice. Signal the right turn the usual appropriate distance before it is negotiated. In city driving, this would normally be a half block before the turn. Naturally, we assume you would slow down in the process. Motorists and other highway users desiring to enter the street from access roads are required by law to yield to traffic already on the street. We might add that if a motorist collides with you from the rear, he would be hard pressed to justify the event in a traffic court.

The law itself demands that you signal your intention to turn no less than 100 feet before the point of the turn. But this is a minimum requirement. If a traffic officer felt certain conditions warranted signaling further in advance, he could issue a citation for your lack of judgment.

Q: I recently bought a housing company and changed the company name. The old name is painted on the sides of the trucks. Am I required to put the new name on now, or can I wait until I have all the trucks repainted?

A: If you're planning on using the vehicles now, you must have the new name painted on immediately. Chapter MVD 4 of the Wisconsin Administrative Code requires that the name and post-office address of the operator be painted on both sides of each truck.

Don't sign any contract until you've read it, official warns

MADISON — Have you ever signed a contract without reading it — relying only upon a salesman's word that it is OK?

If your answer is yes — then you are asking for trouble if a problem arises, says Tom Crist, director of the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture's bureau of consumer protection.

According to Crist, case histories on file with the consumer protection bureau show that many consumer problems could have been avoided if buyers had taken the time to read and understand what they were signing.

Some reasons given were: "The salesman assured me that everything agreed upon was in the contract;" "He told me his company always used this type of contract without problems," or "He said, 'Everything we talked about is right here in print, all you need is sign on the dotted line.'"

In some of the cases investigated by the bureau, many of the items discussed by the buyer and seller never appeared in the written contract.

Crist points out that contracts are designed to protect both the seller and buyer. "Therefore it is important that you know your rights and obligations — and the only way you can know is to read the contract," he emphasizes.

His advice: "Don't sign a contract until you have read it and understand it — and if it involves a considerable sum of money — seek the advice of an attorney before you sign."

Beer, wine chemicals revealed in booklet

BY ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — Can you picture a beer can boasting of the "finest" or "choice" hops, plus enzymes, antioxidants, propylene glycol alginate and heptyl ester of para-hydroxy benzoic acid?

If some consumer advocates have their way, such a list might become a reality. Labels for wine and liquor products would also include chemical terms as well as the alcohol content, which is already labeled.

Do consumers of beer, wine and liquor really want to know such details when they imbibe?

At least two consumers feel that they do. They are Michael Jacobson and Joel Anderson, authors of a 38-page booklet just published by the Center for Science in the Public Interest, a research organization here. The title is "Chemical Additives in Booze."

With this publication, Jacobson and Anderson bring muckraking to the last frontier of consumerism. Until now, the $1 billion alcoholic beverages industry has been virtually uncriticized from the standpoint of truth in packaging.

As the authors say, "When we think of booze, we almost instinctively consign it to a special sacrosanct category containing things that are traditionally and undoubtedly pure, wholesome, untainted and virtuous." (Jacobson and Anderson do not address the moral issue of drinking.)

Their main concern is the truthfulness of labels. They point out that while the industry has been adding more and more chemicals to its products, the identity of these chemicals can not be determined from the labels.

"The arguments that justify the complete listing of ingredients on all foods apply as strongly for all alcoholic beverages," they say. "The consumer's basic right to know what's in the bottle — for whatever medical, religious, scientific or idiosyncratic reason she or he may have — should be a foremost consideration in labeling."

The authors contend that government responsibility for requiring disclosure of ingredients in alcoholic beverages has lipped between the cracks on the way from the Food and Drug Administration to the Internal Revenue Service.

They say it was a mistake for the FDA to have delegated its authority over booze content to the IRS in 1940. For the IRS "doesn't care about any chemical in booze except for the amount of ethyl alcohol on which it places a tax."

Warming up to their subject, they demand:

"The FDA and IRS must end the booze industry's privileged status and require label disclosure of additives and ban unsafe and untested additives. The boomers must stop deceiving the American drinker."

However, Jacobson and Anderson do not single out any present additive as a grave threat to human health. The main targets of their criticism, cobalt and diethylpyrocarbonate, were dropped from use in beer after their safety was questioned years ago.

The authors question the use of some additives still employed in the beverage industry. But their reasons involve lack of adequate testing rather than proof of harmful effects.

As might be expected, however, they come down hard on alcohol as a danger to health, and they point out the lack of nutrition in such drinks. But they are not without a sense of humor. Their concluding word is:

"Cheers."

Bureaucracy shaken up in Poland

By NICHOLAS LILLITOS

Associated Press Writer

WARSAW (AP) — Poland's vigorous campaign against petty bureaucracy, launched soon after Edward Gierek became communist party leader, continues unabated, with plans to shake up drastically the nation's entire system of local government.

The changes will affect about 15 million Poles, nearly half the country's population, who presently live in small towns and villages and are ruled by People's Councils.

Beginning next year, these bodies will be given more executive powers to make them independent of the centrally controlled government apparatus. And according to Polish news media, tens of thousands of useless regulations will be tossed into the wastepaper bin.

Of key interest is the announcement that small hamlets will be permitted to draw up their own social and economic programs. Before, they were normally subordinate to the national budget, which all Communist countries call the "five-year plan."

To enable councils to finance their programs effectively the Communist state will transfer to them revenues from land taxes, duties paid by village handicraft shops, and other tax obligations of rural dwellers.

The moves are the latest in a spate of government measures designed to cut down on red tape and raise Poland's work efficiency.

"The act on local administration has become obsolete in the 22 years since it came into force and no longer corresponds to our present conditions," said one Warsaw newspaper, Zycie Warszawy.

Similar anti-red tape remarks appear frequently in the Polish press and it is the news media that Gierek is utilizing to spread his message into every Polish home.

He came to power in December 1970 during a wave of economic riots. He inherited a plodding bureaucratic apparatus—the legacy of 14 years' rule by Wladyslaw Gomulka.

Now, in every county in Poland, special teams are examining how many local council regulations can be junked. Some have come up with figures that will keep the garbage man busy for weeks.

For instance, in districts of Bialystok, not far from the Soviet border, it was found that 73,936 acts could be cut down to a mere 3,543—without hindering efficiency.

"The teams showed no mercy for the countless regulations which have not stood the test of time," commented Zycie Warszawy.

Gierek earlier fired nearly every party first secretary in this country's 16 districts, along with a host of their lieutenants. The general farewell for most of them was they had resigned because of "ill health."

Brazil has success in fighting inflation

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Brazil's brand of wage and price controls has checked an inflation that was once heading for the skies.

"Nobody in the world has done it quite like Brazil," says a U.S. diplomat specializing in economic affairs. "Inflation is built into the economy. Yet there has been fantastic growth, and no one sector seems to be suffering."

Because Brazil is run by a tough, economy-minded military-led regime, the people are obliged to comply with the rules of the economic game. Open opposition to economic policy is not tolerated.

Strikes are illegal, except when the government approves them. Unions and employersicker over pay raises, but the government makes the final ruling and that's that. It works the same way with prices. Farmers, manufacturers and consumers all have their say, but the state gets the last word.

Inflation this year will be around 15 per cent, the government predicts. This seems astoundingly high compared to the 2½ per cent ceiling goal President Nixon has set for the United States this year. But Brazil's inflation was rising by nearly 90 per cent a year before the armed forces took over in 1964.

Brazil's inflation should be less this year than that of most other South American countries. It fell from 21 per cent in 1970 to 18 per cent in 1971, and the government has set a goal of 10 per cent by 1974.

Every May the president decrees an increase in the federally controlled minimum wage, currently around $40 a month, the idea is to stay slightly ahead of or at least keep pace with the rise in the cost of living from the previous year. All employers must pay the new salary. State, federal and local civil servants wages also go up once a year.

Unions representing workers in private industry who earn more than the minimum salary make annual demands for raises. Employers can object if they feel the request are too high, but they usually don't. The federal Labor Ministry determines how much the raise should be and issues subsequent orders.

Prices are set by the government. The Finance Ministry keeps an eye on the prices of manufactured goods, and the Agriculture Ministry, through an agency called SUNAB, watches food and household items.

Rents and professional fees are not closely checked.

Some retail prices are set by decree. Others — for example, the current five-cent cost of a small cup of coffee in Rio's thousands of standup bars — are determined after negotiations between SUNAB and the bar owners.

Retailers who charge too much are subject to fines and, in extreme cases, closure.

Authorized prices must be posted in stores. A customer who thinks he's being overcharged can call SUNAB and complain.

"There's not much bureaucracy," SUNAB official Maria Ines Sans said. "Sometimes we tell them: 'Wait right there. We're sending someone over to check.'"

Most complaints come from butcher shops, Mrs. Sans added.

Dissent stirring within NEA

Tuesday, Sept. 19, 1972

The Post-Crescent, Appleton-Menasha, Wis.

B-5

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1.2 million members of the National Education Association vote this fall on a new constitution and bylaws that are stirring dissent among members and allies.

Opponents of the new documents contend that the outcome of the November mail-ballot election will determine whether the NEA continues its "gradual drift toward unionism." The organization is presently devoted to such matters as research, curriculum and ethics.

Currently within the NEA: —Dr. Sam Lambert, a strong critic of the proposed constitution which would limit his powers, has announced his retirement date as the organization's executive director.

Some state NEA organizations are fighting the new constitution which opponents say would weaken the state associations and smaller local units for the benefit of larger urban units.

Organizations affiliated or associated with the NEA are unhappy about a proposal that 75 per cent of their membership also must be NEA members. Some are talking of dropping ties with the NEA.

"The NEA, which has served as a unifying influence in the past, has designed a constitution that may split us asunder," said Eugene P. Smith, president of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics, a national affiliate of NEA with 45,000 members.

John Ryor, president of the Michigan Education Association and a strong supporter of the new constitution, said he didn't agree with Smith's evaluation, but added that some NEA affiliates appeal to a wider membership than classroom teachers who make up the bulk of NEA's membership.

Some NEA members speculate that Lambert, executive director of the giant teaching organization for the past five years, negotiated an early retirement because of displeasure with the proposed constitution, called Con-Con, and what he considers the steady drift of the NEA toward a structure resembling a trade labor union.

The NEA in recent years has become more aggressive in negotiating teachers' pay and other bread-and-butter issues as the smaller American Federation of Teachers challenged its right to bargain for teachers.

Last June, Lambert, in a speech he said could cost him his job, sharply criticized the proposed constitution and the "drift toward unionism." Then he told a news conference he had no intention of giving up the $65,000-a-year job that under contract runs until April 1, 1974.

Two months later, the NEA announced Lambert would take early retirement April 1, 1973, and actually leave the job Oct. 1 for a sabbatical.

Ryor said in an interview that "Sam's position is that professionalism and collectivism are not compatible. Professionalism and collectivism are not necessarily at odds with each other."

After hearing Lambert's speech, delegates to the June NEA convention beat down all attempts to amend the proposed documents and approved them 4,154 to 2,175.

The NEA's executive committee last week announced that it had interpreted the "overwhelming affirmative vote as a mandate to support the proposed constitution ... and therefore strongly urges each NEA member to support the decision."

Of particular concern to Lambert are provisions he said would create a very powerful president and substantially "reduce the status, prestige and authority" of the executive director, in his job.

Under the present constitution, NEA presidents are elected for one-year terms and may not seek reelection. The new documents give the president a two-year term and the right to seek reelection twice.

"The first president you elect under this system will be in for life unless he is completely incompetent both as a politician and administrator," Lambert said.

"The likelihood of that happening is about as much chance as I have of making a roundtrip vacation to the moon," Replied Ryor.

Lambert said that the proposed constitution would drive out 17 national affiliates and 11 associated organizations with 400,000 members of which, he said, probably half are NEA members.

"Make no mistake about it," he said, "they will leave and when they leave they will be going out angry at NEA."

The proposal that rankles the affiliates and associate organization is that 75 per cent of their membership also must be NEA members.

Affiliates now must have officers who are NEA members. There is no similar requirement for associated organizations.

Although most NEA affiliates and associates say they have no intentions of cutting formal ties unless forced out, six already have made plans to move out of NEA headquarters and seven have purchased land for possible new offices.

William L. Pharis, executive secretary of the National Association of Elementary School Principals, with 23,936 members, said, "We have been critical of Con-Con since the outset. We obviously will be forced out. We can't live with the 75 per cent requirement."

As a group, the classroom teachers, who represent close to 900,000 of the NEA membership, have supported the new constitution and the trend toward more aggressive contract negotiations.

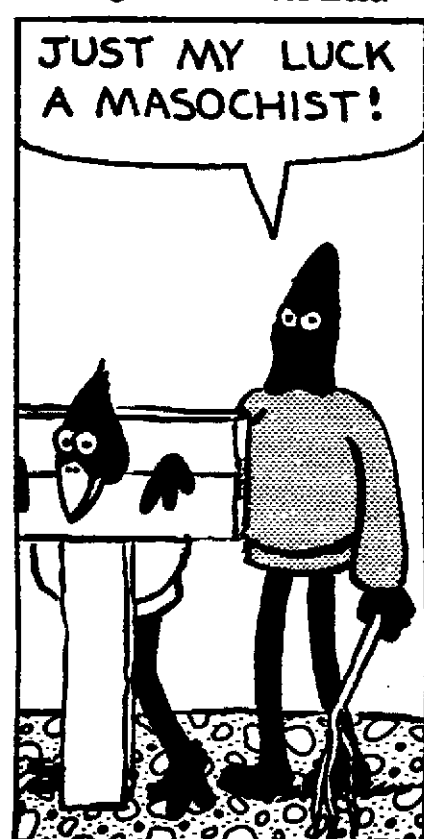

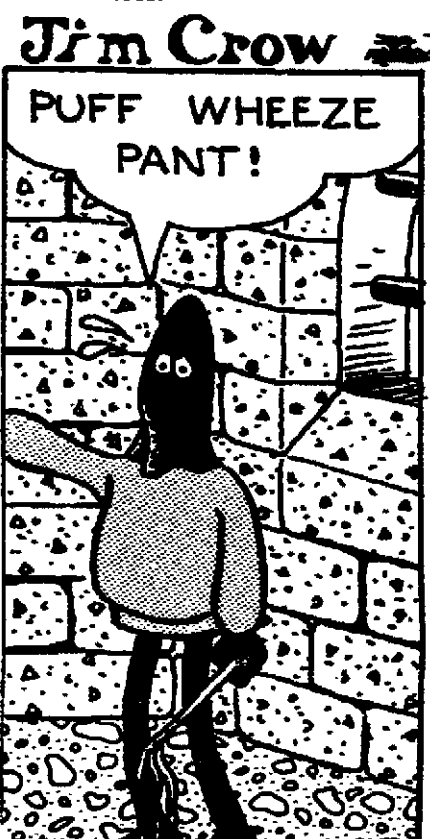

Pharis said "a militant breed of classroom teachers which is increasing in numbers has gained control of the machinery and is making NEA a classroom teachers union."

Ryor, commenting on Pharis' statement, said: "He doesn't have control anymore. He is absolutely right. I think for the most part NEA is more a teacher-oriented advocate. I don't think administrators can speak forcibly for teacher concerns. Yet a number of state organizations are still controlled by administrators and there is no question that the impetus for change is coming from the large urban locals."

Ryor said that "historically, criticism of NEA has been that it is largely controlled by administrators. The new documents will give the classroom teachers a greater voice in NEA's governance."

Under the new constitution local units would be able to determine who is eligible for membership in their unit, making it possible to exclude supervisory employees or administrators.

Responding to claims that the new constitution would weaken state associations and smaller local units, Ryor concluded that concern about the new documents existed in smaller population centers. But he said "Michigan would be the first to fight for its rights" if the need arose.

Convert cardboard box into target

Today's fun-project for boys and girls is a game to make at home. Required are a big cardboard box to be converted into a target and the tube from a roll of paper toweling.

Prepare the target by removing the top of the box and cutting five notches along its sides as in figure one. Be sure to make each pair of notches directly opposite each other.

Print a score value at each notch as in figure three. As summing you have a towel core available, the equipment is now ready.

Her career may be over

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A year ago, Ann-Margret was undergoing the effects of a show business career that had suddenly turned hot.

"I've been feeling so much tension, such pressure," the Swedish-born entertainer said.

"It's a definite signal. I'll work through the year because I've got commitments. Then I'll quit show business. At least for a year. Maybe forever."

Now Ann-Margret may be forced to end her career.

On Sunday night she fell 22 feet from a scaffolding on which she was to make her entrance at a Lake Tahoe hotel-casino.

She suffered five facial fractures, a broken jaw and a broken left arm. She underwent facial surgery Wednesday at UCLA Medical Center.

Her doctor said the operation was a success. He predicted complete recovery, but he said he didn't know how long it would take.

The accident threatened a colorful career marked by early triumph, a downhill slide, then peak achievement with an Oscar nomination for a sex-charged role.

Ann-Margret's hard-driving ambition stems from her childhood. Born April 28, 1941, in Stockholm, she lived most of her early years alone with her mother. When the girl was 8, they joined her father near Chicago, where he had been working as a mortician.

The Olssons — she dropped her last name early in her career — moved from one house to another. She has said she still has nightmares from sleeping in the same room with dead bodies awaiting burial.

The ambition to entertain came early: "I wanted to put emotion into people's lives — so they would stop walking around like zombies."

At 16, she failed to win as a singer on The Amateur Hour. Then, after a year at Northwestern University she went on tour. People were impressed by the voluptuous, red-haired Nordic beauty with the straightforward singing style. straightforward singing style.

One of them was comedian George Burns. He recalls:

"She came to my office with her piano player and said she wanted to go out to Las Vegas with my show. I had just started Bobby Darin along the way, and I asked her if she could sing as well as Bobby Darin. She said, 'I don't know if I can sing as well as he can, but I feel as good when I'm on the stage.'"

Burns took her to a piano in a dusty studio prop room and heard her sing "Mack the Knife" and "Bill Bailey." He

But something went sour. Her managers seemed to be promoting her as a motorcycling Marilyn Monroe.

She has remarked: "The critics had an image of me, and they wouldn't accept any other. To them I was an exploited object, someone with no feelings, no emotions, no depth. I was a cartoon character. A joke."

That changed with "Carnal Knowledge."

Now her future now will be determined by the outcome of Wednesday's surgery.

'Maude' story may shock some viewers

7-7:30 Channels 2-7 — Maude may shock some viewers, and not necessarily prudish ones. It's about reactions to Maude's (Beatrice Arthur) grandson found behind the garage naked and "looking" at the neighbors' visiting and also naked granddaughter.

7:30-8:30 Channels 2-7 — Ricardo Montalban plays a wealthy man who also is a racing enthusiast on Hawaii Five-O. With everything to live for — a son and a devoted mistress (Diane Muldaur) — he still plans to race up the dangerous mountain, the one usually reserved for people with a death wish. But all is not as serene as it seems, which is proven when his mechanic is murdered.

8-9 Channel 5 — The Bold Ones, devoted solely to the doctors episodes this season, begins with the conclusion of the show begun on Ironside. Ed Brown (Don Galloway) is about to go into surgery which will determine if he will ever walk again and guess what? A bad guy kidnaps the surgeon's daughter and says he'll kill her if the surgeon (Vic Morrow) doesn't appear on a balcony.

9-10 Channel 5 — NBC Reports presents "Guilty by Reason of Race," an inquiry into the invasion hysteria and wartime anti-oriental feeling during World War II which led to the incarceration of 110,000 Japanese-Americans in detention camps. You'll see old newsreels and photographs which plantively depict the plight of the Japanese Americans whose lives were abruptly interrupted by Executive Order 9066 in 1942.

9-10 Channels 11-9 — Marcus Welby M.D. has an interesting and moving story of a retarded young man who must make a major decision. Bruce Davison plays this chap, a difficult role he handles beautifully. His brother (Mike Farrell) is a scientist who has an illness brought on by radiation exposure. He needs a bone marrow transplant and the retarded young man is the only one who can help.

Movies on television

11-9 — "No Place to Run"
34 — "Stranger at My Door" — A mystery of gunplay, romance and intrigue in Dublin. Valentine Dyal.

Enrollment drop is only 135 students

The Appleton public schools Monday released their official 1972 fall enrollment figure. It is 14,199, or 135 fewer students than a year ago.

Jerome Boettcher, director of operations, said the final figure was attained from counts taken last Friday, in accordance with state aid requirements.

To qualify for state formula school aids, districts must take attendance figures from the third Friday in September and report these to the State Department of Public Instruction.

An attendance count a week ago showed a decline of 148, and the first day figure showed a 286-student decline from the 1971-72 enrollment of 14,334.

Boettcher said the most recent figure, the one used for aids, was considered the most accurate. The earlier ones were used primarily for in-school staff and program planning.

For this latest figure, he said, the homes of students were contacted to determine why they had not followed through on their enrollment application. Some have decided to go to parochial schools, he noted.

This is the second consecutive year that public school enrollments have declined. The decline is primarily in the lower elementary grades as birth rates and other factors hold down those enrollments.

Catholic scholar to lecture

GREEN BAY - Dr. William Michael Lawlor of Montreal, Que., will speak at the catechetical congress which will be from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday at Premontre High School.

Speaking on "What is Faith: Theological Perspectives," Lawlor will discuss the nature of the faith Jesus demands of his followers: its chief characteristics, the quality of life it produces, its personal and communal dimension.

A well known scholar and lecturer, Lawlor is currently a professor in the Department of Catholic Studies at McGill University. He will speak at 9:15 a.m. following a welcoming address by the Most Rev. Aloisius Wycislo, bishop of Green Bay.

Sponsored by the Green Bay Diocesan Office of Education, the Congress also will include morning, afternoon and evening seminars and a 1:30 p.m. main address by Thomas Francoeur, also a professor of Catholic studies at McGill.

Francoeur, who works closely with religious communities in renewal projects, will discuss the stages through which a person normally passes in the process of developing the kind of faith described in the first address. Emphasis will be on the childhood and adolescent stages.

At 7 p.m. both men will speak on the subject, "Who is the Teacher? Social Perspectives."

Woods elected new Loewi vice president

Jack H. Woods, formerly a vice president with Continental Illinois National Bank of Chicago, has joined the corporate finance department of Loewi & Co., Inc., Milwaukee, and has been elected a vice president.

With Continental, he had responsibility for all phases of corporate and correspondent banking for Wisconsin.

Loewi, a banking investment firm, has an office in Appleton.

Warmer but wet too!

A stationary front which has caused storms along the southern Wisconsin-Illinois border now has become a warm front and will move into the Fox Valley through the next 24 hours bringing warm temperatures and thunderstorms, according to United States Weather Bureau forecasters at Green Bay.

The front should cause much warmer temperatures with the Fox Cities high likely to reach the mid 80's Wednesday. The low tonight may be near 62, according to forecasters. Increasing moisture will cause variable cloudiness and thunderstorms are likely throughout the area tonight and Wednesday.

Winds will shift slightly from southeast at 8-15 m.p.h. tonight to southwest at 10-18 m.p.h. Wednesday. There is a 50 per cent chance of rain tonight and a 50 per cent chance Wednesday.

Monday in Appleton the high temperature was 72, according to Wisconsin Michigan Power Company records. The low for the day was 55, according to the company. At 9:30 a.m. today the barometer was 30.40 and steady. Winds then were east-southeast at 10 m.p.h. and the humidity was 95 per cent. The dew point was 61 and there was .07 inch of rain.

Loan logjam keeps students from college

An outrage bordering on scandal is the chaos which has surrounded the Federal-state guaranteed student loan program this past summer.

So organized is the situation even at this very late date that in some states nearly two-thirds of the students who must have the guaranteed loans to go to college still have not obtained them - and some may not get the money for months.

This student loan logjam, in fact, could well be one key factor behind the high number of vacancies in many colleges from coast to coast. And the tragedy may be that uncounted numbers of students from middle-income families who should and want to go to college this year may have scrapped their plans altogether.

To suggest the totals which are involved, an enormous 300,000 student loan applications have been backed up while Washington bureaucrats have been sifting, sorting and generally failing miserably to fulfill their stated functions.

What happened?

First, Congress earlier this year enacted a batch of amendments to the guaranteed student loan program - which had expired in 1971 - switching the authority for determining the amount a student could get each year from the lenders of the money to the educational institution the student was attending. Congress also boosted the maximum loan amount from $1,500 a year to a new high of $2,500 a year.

Number reduced

Next, on July 1, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare issued its own set of regulations which, in effect, sharply reduced the numbers of students eligible for the loans - in bold contradiction to the intent of Congress when it voted the amendments.

Specifically, the department instantly disqualified hundreds of thousands of students for loans by slapping on a strict "needs" test - requiring, among other things, students' families in the $15,000 and under income brackets to count such liquid assets as the equity in their homes and life insurance policies toward the amounts they were expected to contribute toward the education of their children.

Finally, to end the confusion and start the money flowing, Congress passed emergency legislation late last month. Under this, most of the new amendments have been suspended temporarily, and once again in effect - until next March - are the old rules. The key provisions: A student from a family with an adjusted yearly income of $15,000 per year or less may borrow at very favorable rates up to $1,500 per academic year, begin repaying nine to 12 months after graduation, take up to 10 years to pay. Interest subsidies are paid to the lending institutions to encourage them to extend the loans at the below-market rates.

What should you do, if you or your college student son or daughter are among those who have not obtained loans for the current or winter semester? Here is advice from the American Bankers Association in Washington, which includes among its members banks making more than 80 per cent of all the subsidized loans under this 1965 student loan program:

- Immediately apply for a loan - or reapply - at the lending institution where your family is known.

Financial aid officer

- If you still are turned away, immediately apply - or reapply - for guidance from your college financial aid officer. Many educational institutions maintain lines of credit with lenders in their own areas which a qualified student may tap.

- Also request information from your financial aid officer on other sources of funds - to help you through a crisis period caused by events far, far beyond your control.

What this report is all about is the untenable position of middle-income taxpayers who, in the words of Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., are "clobbered by taxes, cannot come up with the college tuition for their own sons and daughters" but who receive "the lowest priority for student financial aid."

And what this report is shouting between the lines is that America cannot possibly properly educate its young men and women unless there is a drastic overhaul in the way we handle the financing of higher education.

For college costs continue to soar; corporate financial support of higher education is not expanding at nearly the pace essential; in many ways, corporate support is actually shrinking; and it's painfully obvious that the "clobbered" middle-income taxpayer won't be able to manage it without far more liberal government help.

Valley chamber dinner to feature report on Thilmany pollution fight

KAUKAUNA - William Seymour, vice president of Thilmany Pulp and Paper Co., will report on the firm's multimillion dollar air and water pollution abatement program when the Heart of the Valley Chamber of Commerce holds its semiannual dinner at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 11 at Van Abel's Hollandtown.

A 6:30 p.m. cocktail party will precede the dinner and a dance is slated after the program. The event will be open to members, their employees and friends. Extra tickets, $3.50 each, are available at the chamber office.

Various industries in the Heart of the Valley area will prepare displays for the dinner. Members have been requested to notify the chamber office of the number of people planning to attend from various organizations.

Friends may call at the Lewin Funeral Home in Fremont after 3 p.m. Wednesday until 11 a.m. Thursday and then at the church until the hour of service.

Medicare benefits for extended care explained

One of the most misunderstood aspects of the medicare law is the provision concerning post-hospital benefits in an extended care facility (ECF).

Many people apparently don't realize that under Part A of medicare, extended care benefits are available for a medicare patient who no longer needs the intensive care that hospitals provide, but still needs full-time skilled nursing care and other health services that cannot be provided in his home.

In the past two years, medicare has paid over $500 million in benefits to extended care facilities on behalf of medicare beneficiaries. For each patient determined to be eligible for extended care benefits, medicare can help pay for care up to a maximum of 100 days in each benefit period. However, the full 100 days is not guaranteed.

Some of the services included in the extended care benefits are: Semiprivate rooms and all meals (including special diets); regular nursing services; drugs furnished by the ECF; physical, occupational and speech therapy; medical supplies; and the use of equipment and appliances furnished by the ECF.

To be eligible for extended care benefits, a medicare patient must fulfill all of the following requirements:

- Be hospitalized for at least three consecutive days and be admitted to an ECF within 14 days after discharge from the hospital.

Additional care

- Be admitted to the ECF and approved by medicare to receive additional care for a condition treated while in a hospital;

- Need skilled nursing care on a full-time basis. (Care is considered skilled if it must be furnished by or under the direct personal supervision of trained medical or paramedical personnel to be done effectively without endangering the patient's health. The type of service itself, rather than who actually performs the service, determines if the service can be considered skilled.)

It is this last requirement which most often prevents payment of extended care benefits. When Congress passed the medicare law, benefits for all of the different types of care that elderly patients might need could not be covered. The kinds of care that were considered to be the most important and the most frequently needed were selected and as much protection as possible was provided based on budget limitations.

It was not possible to include care that is not medically necessary for treating an illness or injury, or care which primarily consists of services which are needed to assist the patient in daily living activities such as bathing, dressing or eating.

Further information may be obtained from the Social Security office, 1801 N. Richmond St.

Learning problems to be discussed at workshop

NEENAH - A two-day workshop of the Association for Children with Learning Disabilities, with specialists in their fields leading discussion groups, has been set for Friday and Saturday at the Ramada Inn.

Registration will be at 3 p.m., followed by four workshops. At 3:30 p.m., two mothers will discuss the parent's view of the problem.

Two men involved with the problem on the local level will conduct two separate workshops at 5 p.m. Kenneth Gibson, specialist in children's visual and perceptual problems and director of Honeyrock learning center, and Don Hannah, a teacher in that area with the Appleton School System, are the speakers.

Thomas J. Scharf, special education supervisor with the Department of Public Instruction, will speak at 7 p.m., and Dr. Drake Duane, neurologist with the Mayo Clinic, at 8 p.m.

Saturday's sessions begin at 8 p.m. with a talk on materials for this type of a child. Jean Osman, director of the remedial reading center in Rochester, Minn. will discuss a new method of training at 9 a.m.

Arlene Soudy, language therapist from Milwaukee, will talk at 10 a.m. Two programs in the Appleton schools will be discussed at 11 a.m., with Grace School, director of pre-academic oral communications program, and Hannah leading the two sessions.

At 1 p.m., the conference will resume with Nancy Schulte, coordinator of special classes in Milwaukee, who will talk on the resource teacher; and Bonnie Stelling, a teacher, who will discuss the classroom environment.

At 2 p.m. there will be a workshop for teachers and a special session for parents on the specialized camp programs for such pupils, led by Fred Smith of the Timber Top Camp.

The conference will end with a 3:30 p.m. session on "The Emotional Problems" by Dr. James J. Balistrieri, director of the Juneau Academy of Milwaukee.

multiple bruises. A passing motorist said she saw the Kirkland woman walking east on the north side of the bridge when she suddenly stopped, looked around momentarily, climbed over the railing and jumped into the Fox River.

Miss Kirkland swam to shore under her own power and was assisted from the water by a passerby. She reportedly was conscious throughout the incident.

When police arrived, the woman was lying face down on the east bank beneath the bridge.

Coed in good condition after falling from bridge

A 20-year-old Lawrence University coed remained in good condition today at St. Elizabeth Hospital where she is being treated for injuries suffered in a fall from the E. College Avenue bridge about 2 p.m. Sunday.

Edith H. Kirkland, Rockville, Md., a resident of Plantz Hall, was taken by private ambulance to the hospital for treatment of a fractured pelvis and

The disarmament agreement

Senator Henry Jackson and his cohorts probably should not be blamed too much for their successful effort to get accepted an amendment to the United States-Soviet interim agreement on offensive arms as signed by President Nixon in Moscow last spring. But their thinking is anachronistic.

The amendment requires numerical equality in intercontinental missiles in future negotiations. This may seem to be the safest way to approach any arms limitations or moves toward disarmament agreements. The balance of terror can be retained, the argument goes, only if both sides feel secure in their defense along with the offensive ability to retaliate effectively in case of a sneak attack by the other side.

But in reality the destructive capabilities of both nations is currently so massive that numerical equality doesn't really mean much. What difference does it make whether the United States has 1,000 missiles and Russia has 999 or 1,001 when 10 could blow up the major cities of either nation and render largely ineffective whatever people were left? Admittedly it is difficult to estimate the exact amount of damage or the possibility of defense capabilities. But in the future any real deterrent must not be so much one of equality of numbers as of hard realization of what could and would happen if nuclear war should break out.

The danger in the interim agreement and its amendment is that real negotiations with Russia will become meaningless. Exact numbers do not take into account United States technological advances — or those of Russia in the future. There is too much reliance upon the letter rather than the spirit of the agreement but it is the latter which primarily must be relied upon to prevent all-out conflict in some uneasy future year.

Since this is an election year, it may be suggested that the White House draft of the amendment which Senator Jackson pressed was to help hold conservative votes which President Nixon may fear he has lost on his trips to Peking and Moscow. But there seems to be real concern among backers of the amendment that equality is the only safeguard. One need not rely at all upon the integrity or even intelligence of Russian leaders to doubt this is true. In rejecting attempts to insist upon overall equality, not just in the number of ICBM's, the Senate may have lost a chance to restrict the Soviet Union in future arms developments rather than to make our own advances currently secure.

Nevertheless, if the Soviet Union and the United States are able to work sincerely toward arms limitation agreements, the move was at least one step. This is the first time that Russia has agreed in any way to offensive weapons limitations as well as defensive ones. It is just to be hoped that the obvious lack of trust in the United States — a reasonable one — does not result in more of the same in Russia.

What are Mr. Taub's credentials?

Fidel Castro may rant now and then about the glories of independence from any United States influence, and the United Nations Decolonization Committee dominated by China and Cuba recently passed a resolution calling for freedom for Puerto Rico. But on that island with Commonwealth status to the United States the November elections have a local orientation that has little to do with the independence issue.

Puerto Rico, which became a United States possession in the 1898 Spanish-American war (we gave independence to Cuba at the same time), gained Commonwealth status in 1952. This gave them an elected but non-voting representative in Washington and guidance of some of our federal laws relating to the military draft, immigration, shipping, communications and the minimum wage modified according to the individual industry's ability to pay. English is required in the schools but Spanish is the number one language. Puerto Ricans can come and go as they please in the United States — they are citizens with all it implies if not completely as far as their governmental link is concerned.

In their elections they will choose a governor, local legislators and mayors for 76 communities. But in the background there is the status of Puerto Rico in the future. The present governor, Luis Ferre, and his New Progressive Party, are in favor of eventual statehood for Puerto Rico although they are not campaigning particularly on this issue. The challenger, Senator Rafael Hernandez Colon, currently president of the Commonwealth Senate, is a member of the Popular Democrats, for years in control of the government and backing continued Commonwealth status.

However, both sides concede that a referendum on that issue will come in a few years. A similar plebiscite five years ago went for the Commonwealth 60.4 per cent to 39 per cent. Obviously those in favor of independence hardly registered at all and are unlikely to in the next decade or so. Puerto Rico has so many financial advantages in its relationship with the United States with very little emotional pull toward independence that it is currently difficult to see how even the world-wide liberation front movements could have much impact.

The local issues are important, including the continued high unemployment and various mayoralty races which depend upon the personality of the candidates as well as their party allegiance. But the United States as a whole may have an influence, too. The current governor backs President Nixon while his opponent has endorsed Senator McGovern.

Puerto Rico's future is likely to depend primarily about economic issues. The potentially explosive matter of liberty for liberty's sake has not had much influence.

Puerto Rico and independence

It seems even top officials can be conned. Or perhaps the very fact that someone has the audacity to try makes them all the more susceptible.

Take the case of William L. Taub who somehow led quite a few people to believe that he was a lawyer representing James Hoffa in the latter's effort to go to Hanoi to seek the release of American prisoners of war. No one can specifically remember Taub having represented himself as an attorney but one man said he had the impression Taub was a member of "an important New York law firm" and Taub had done nothing to change the impression.

Taub had dealings with the film industry in a number of ways over the last few decades but here, too, it has been difficult to distinguish the real from the apparent. Was he a "worldwide representative" for Pope Paul VI's film interests, a co-producer of "Z", in possession of the rights to Chaplin films, and what, if anything, did he have to do with possible modification in Hoffa's probation conditions? Only Taub seems to know and even he by this time may have come to confuse the facts with fantasy.

Such a reportedly hard-nosed individual as Attorney General Richard Kleindienst had an appointment with Taub on a "lawyer to lawyer" basis and a lesser official from the same office did meet with Taub when the attorney general could not. Then there was Henry Kissinger who, through his contacts with the movie industry, personal or not, may have helped Taub along.

Grad school fees are problem

MADISON — When Dean Robert Bock of the University of Wisconsin-Madison campus graduate school deplored the comparatively high non-resident tuition charged to graduate school students, he undoubtedly spoke with the knowledge and the approval of the highest officers of the university. The biennial season of crisis is approaching for the institution. During the next few months the political rulers of the state will make higher education budget decisions.

All the signs suggest, moreover, that there are leaner days ahead for the entire state government establishment and because the university is such a giant in the complex of services of regularly increasing cost, prudent men on the campus are aware of problems ahead for themselves.

Dean Bock says in effect that any tendency to push the graduate school fees higher will be risky to the university's status as a center of graduate instruction and research and its rank among the principal educational institutions of the nation. Such charges are now levied at the rate of $1,188 per semester for non-residents.

9,000 graduate students

Last year the university's Madison campus enrolled nearly 9,000 graduate students, nearly 5,000 of them non-residents. Obviously any tendency to boost the fees will discourage such non-residents.

The university as represented by its senior faculty, deans and administrative officials measures its rank among sister schools according to its reputation for graduate studies and the quality of graduate school products. In that measure it stands high, and in some categories is among the very highest in distinction among peer schools of the nation.

Without impugning to any degree the sincerity of the persuasive dean of graduate studies at the major educational center in Wisconsin, Dr. Bock's warning was couched in selective terms.

He ranked Wisconsin with the public universities only, for example, in measuring the weight of its graduate charges. He omitted mention of the fact that many hundreds of his graduate students get stipends from the state budget in teaching and research assistantships and others that are sufficient to cover tuition bills and a substantial part of their cost of living.

Perhaps more relevantly, he appeared to ignore the reality that it is difficult to ask the tax-aggravated ordinary folk of Wisconsin to pay higher taxes for the subsidization of bright young scholars from Chicago, or St. Louis, or Hackensack, or wherever. These taxpayers are his constituents too, as they are constituents of

Gov. Patrick Lucey who soberly talks about "austerity" as he prepares for the second half of his term.

Many undergraduate campuses

To the professional scholar, the graduate school is the nerve center of the university. Undergraduates can be taught basic mathematics, French grammar, or the typical courses in literature and economics on any one of a dozen good campuses in Wisconsin.

The undergraduate programs are important as they produce promising candidates for graduate degrees, and in that consideration, geographical boundaries are irrelevant. Yet they are painfully relevant in tax liabilities — and in political decisions.

It is a dilemma that has troubled some of the best men of the senior faculty and administration of the university for several decades. Generally, there is growing support for the idea originally enunciated — at least in Wisconsin debate — by Fred Harrington, the former Madison campus president, who said graduate instruction should be charged against the national tax base.

In its graduate divisions the university is a national institution, as its enrollments testify.

Dean Bock is undoubtedly correct when he implies that without non-resident tuition charges it would grow more important.

"At least we agree on something . . . !"

Some observations about big families

(During Mr. Harris' vacation, we are reprinting some of the most requested columns from his forth-coming book, "For the Time Being," to be published this fall.)

If we are going to cut down seriously on our population growth — and I think it is an absolute necessity — then we will first have to change our simple-minded attitude toward the parents of large families.

Most people who meet me for the first time ask about my family, and when they find I have five children they emit little murmurs of admiration and respect, as if I had done something notable.

Now I am pleased and proud to have these children, but there was nothing especially meritorious about their conception. Their existence does not testify to my virility, or even to any exceptional fertility, and certainly is no evidence that I am suited for parenthood.

Anybody with the nominal equipment can have children; it is no great achievement. Indeed, in most cases it happens during a fit of absent-mindedness. No child should ever be called a "mistake," but some are certainly miscalculations.

Parents with four children are not twice as good or twice as loving or twice as intelligent as parents with only two children. True, they have more experience, but as Bismarck said of his donkey, "He has been through nine campaigns with me, and knows no more than he did after the first."

Apart from our population problem, I am convinced that an immense number of people who have children should not have them, and do not particularly want them, except as "symbols" of family life. What they want are ideal children, not real ones; and as soon as the real ones show no intention of conforming to the ideal in the parent's mind, they are treated as burdens, shipped away to school, or otherwise neglected.

Somebody once said that if many people had not read about romantic love and seen it on the screen, they would never look for it themselves. I believe this, and along with it I believe that if many people were not ashamed to be thought deficient in "family feeling" they would never have children.

Nor have I noticed that the parents of large families exhibit any more proficiency in bringing them up, except in terms of establishing a barracks room regimen which is necessary for simple survival. Some studies have indicated, in fact, that children coming from large families suffer from a lack of sharply defined personality and lack a sense of individual identity.

At any rate, we have to begin to recognize that it is the quality of parenthood that is more essential than the quantity. Rousseau, be it remembered, wrote a masterly book on education — and then sent his five children to a founding home. He was more honest than most.

More McGovern charges refuted

There are times when I begin to feel like a one-man "truth-squad" with respect to the record and views of Senator George McGovern. This is in part prompted by the strange Orwellian atmosphere that envelops the McGovern candidacy, notably the propensity to rewrite history. If President Nixon should, for example, come forth to say that actually he personally had been secretly opposed to the tactics used by his campaign managers to defeat Helen Gahagan Douglas for the United States Senate in 1950, but that he hadn't wanted to embarrass his supporters, a yowl of derision would go out over the country. But the Democrats have been consistently playing analogous games.

No evidence in peace charge

Item: the bogus story that in the early weeks of his administration Richard Nixon "blew" a great peace opportunity. Source: R. Sargent Shriver, W. Averell Harriman, Cyrus Vance, and assorted spear-carriers. Evidence? None. Pressed on the matter, Shriver admitted that he had not bothered to mention this great peace break in his cables because Harriman and Vance were handling that account. Harriman said he hadn't bothered to mention it in his cables because everybody knew about it. By the time they all got through passing the buck, it seems that Nixon had missed his great opportunity sometime in the summer of 1968 — when, needless to note, he was not president.

Item: the story that Senator McGovern is opposed to quotas. Since I dealt in detail with that little beauty a few columns back, we will let it pass.

Item: the vigorous contention that Senator McGovern is not an "isolationist" who wants to pull out of the world. At the moment he has Professor Abram Chayes of Harvard off as his ambassador-at-large charged with reassuring our European allies and Israel that the McGovern foreign policy will not abandon them. The Europeans and the Israelis have been notably skeptical, recalling that a while back McGovern called for a troop cutback in Europe and even went so far as to suggest that the American relationship to our European allies was comparable to that of the Soviets in Eastern Europe and Czechoslovakia! This notion that NATO is a form of American aggression goes over big with the "new left" in the United States, but among European statesmen it is viewed as a form of imbecility.

Recall that the integrity of American commitments is a general proposition. That is, the Germans watch events in Southeast Asia for clues to our future behavior. Indeed, Attorney General Robert Kennedy once pointed out to them that if we wretched in Vietnam, why should they believe that we would defend Berlin? It was a good question.

The Chayes interview

Now let us tune in on "Ambassador" Chayes talking to a group of journalists in Paris. The reporter is Newsweek's Arnaud de Borchgrave. Question: "You say you would cut off all military aid to Saigon . . . but what if the North Vietnamese also insist that (we) cease all economic aid . . . before the prisoners are returned?"

Chayes: "Well, we'll cut that, too, then. We're not interested in keeping any presence there at all." The next question asked what if Hanoi demanded that we dump Cambodia and Laos as a precondition for releasing all prisoners.

Chayes: "I don't think Hanoi will want Communist regimes (there). But if it does then we'll have to dump Lon Nol and Souvanna Phouma too." The next question drew in Thailand, asking whether we should dismantle our bases there if Hanoi demanded it. Chayes: "We can live with that, too . . ."

Then the crusher: "Are you saying that if he is elected, McGovern would be prepared to abandon not only all of Indochina but the other nations of Southeast Asia as well?"

Chayes: "We don't belong there." (Chayes has denied making these statements. In a letter to Newsweek and in a telephone conversation with the N.Y. Times, he called the interview "seriously inaccurate.")

"Ambassador" Chayes was sent out to calm our European friends down, but on the basis of this performance, if I were Chancellor of West Germany, or Prime Minister of Britain, I would be living on tranquilizers between now and Nov. 7. This is vintage isolationism. For purposes of symmetry it was too bad that Chayes held his session in Paris instead of Munich.

Looking back

100 YEARS AGO

Appleton Crescent Sept. 28, 1872.

On the 30th day of September, the Greatest Show on Earth will pitch its acres of canvas in Neenah to give three grand, full and complete exhibitions of the entire Seven Shows for the simple sum of 50 cents — children half-price — morning, afternoon and evening.

P.T. Barnum's Great Show travels by rail with three and sometimes four trains of about 45 cars each, with two to four engines with each train in order to transport it readily and rapidly from one city to the next. It is so large and so diversified in its multitude of appointments that six separate pavilions are used for the various departments of the exposition. Barnum cannot afford to stop his show in small towns. Only think of a show requiring a thousand men and horses to manage it, and containing over a hundred thousand curiosities, 500 animals, birds, reptiles, marine monsters, a double set of performers, a double circus ring with 100 of the best performers in the country, a vast group of sea lions, wild Fiji cannibals, horse-riding goats, living giraffes, mammoth giants, ponderous reptiles, living human wonders, astounding dwarfs, four times smaller than Tom Thumb. All these to be seen for 50 cents!

25 YEARS AGO

Tuesday, Sept. 18, 1947.

Clement B. Newcomb, Neenah, was re-elected president of the Printing Pressmen and Assistants Union at the state convention of the organization in Menasha the past weekend. George Wilfing was president of the Neenah-Menasha-Appleton local, the convention host.

George Hrubecy was Valley Council chairman for the Fox River Valley Cub Scout Cubber-Do being planned for November.

10 YEARS AGO

Officers of the Xavier High School Student Council were Richard Wiesner, president, Robert Blier, Kelly Kornely, Timothy Brown and Ronald Bixby.

Horses owned by V.E. Quakenbush, Appleton, and Jack Gunning, Oshkosh, took the grand championship and reserve championship, respectively, at the first horse show sponsored by the Manawa Lion's Club. More than 100 entries took part in the show at the Manawa Rodeo Arena.

The Rev. Orville Janssen, editor of the Green Bay Register, was to speak on Catholic education at a meeting of the St. Pius Home-School Association.

U.N. opens assembly

$1.2 billion UW budget asked

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — An escalating crisis in the Middle East, Chinese and Soviet demands for the withdrawal of U.S. troops from Korea, and a bitter debate on terrorism confront delegates from 132 member states as they meet today for the opening of the 27th U.N. General Assembly.

Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko heads a high-powered Soviet delegation. He is the first of the Big Five foreign affairs chiefs to arrive for the 13-week parley, which 73 foreign ministers are expected to attend.

U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers, Sir Alec Douglas-Home, the British foreign secretary, French Foreign Minister M. Maurice Schumann and the Chinese foreign affairs vice minister, Chiao Kuan-hua are scheduled to arrive in the next few days.

The critical assembly session convenes under the tightest security precautions since the 1970 special heads of state meeting to commemorate the United Nations' 25th anniversary.

As on that occasion, a force of federal Executive Protective Service agents has been sent in from Washington. President Nixon ordered 40 to New York to guard the U.N. missions of 18 Arab countries, Israel and the West German observer following the Munich killing of 11 Israeli Olympic squad members.

The session also meets in the lengthening shadow of a Middle East crisis which observers say has set back chances of a negotiated peace agreement several years.

A perennial item on the assembly agenda, the Middle East problem this year is compounded by Israeli retaliation for the Munich terror attack.

Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim on Monday condemned the weekend Israeli incursion into Lebanon, declaring "such acts of violence" were not helpful to solving the crisis by peaceful means.

Waldheim has proposed that the assembly consider "measures to prevent terrorism and other forms of violence," thus possibly assuring the most acrimonious Mideast debate for years.

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Calling for a 25 per cent state tax spending increase, University of Wisconsin System officials Monday unveiled a proposed budget of $1.2 billion for the coming two years.

While campus by campus figures will not be available until later this week, administrators outlined for regents an overall budget structure that calls for $1.182 billion in spending by the system for the 1973-75 biennium.

The sum, a jump from $1.028 billion for the current two-year period, comes on top of a $21.6 million spending cut-back ordered by Gov. Patrick J. Lucey before administrators started to build the new budget request.

System officials contended that the "barebones budget" calls for an increase of only 15 per cent in overall spending and a 20 per cent state tax spending hike, but including the

Lucey-ordered cutbacks in the calculations produces an overall spending increase of almost 17 per cent and a state tax spending jump of almost 25 per cent.

State tax fund spending would increase a total of $103.2 million, under the administration's claim — or $124.6 million, under total spending computations — for the 1973-75 systemwide request. The new state tax spending total, if the full request gains approval from the regents later this week, would be $604.7 million for the next two years.

"We are cutting this budget," said President John C. Weaver in presenting it to the regents, "...to what I think is an irreducible minimum that cannot be cut without hurting higher education."

Terming the budget "prudent, realistic and fair," Weaver warned that "there is no padding for further cutting in this budget."

The spending requests represent "an honest minimum at the outset," he said, as faculty representatives immediately protested a proposed 6 per cent salary hike built into the budget.

Proposing a 6 per cent hike to "professional" faculty members is an insult, said Prof. Anatole Beck of the UW-Madison mathematics department. Prof. Edward Musik of UW-Eau Claire, representing the system faculty association, pushed for raises ranging from 9.5 per cent to 11.9 per cent.

Regent Milton Neshek of Elkhorn pointed out that the 6 per cent hike proposed by the administration totals about $36 million for the next two years and equals a gross increase of 18 per cent during the biennium because of the cumulative nature of the hike during the two-year period.

The budget, in outline form, contains requests for:

— $604.7 in state tax money, up $103.2 million, not counting the forced cut-backs imposed by Lucey.

— $152.7 million in student fees, up $19.2 million, or 14 per cent.

— $184.8 million in federal funding, a hike of $9.2 million or 5 per cent.

— $238.0 million in other receipts, such as hospital fees, representing a $20.2 million increase or a 10 per cent jump

Fixed costs, such as funding and caring for new facilities covering salary increases owed civil servants, and meeting other set salary boosts due during the next two years will cost $73.5 million — or about half of the total increase asked, system officials told the regents

Israeli diplomat killed by bomb

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An Israeli diplomat in London was killed and another wounded today by a bomb delivered in a package, and an American military attache was reported arrested in Syria.

The British Foreign Office identified the diplomat killed in the blast as an agricultural attache Dr. Ami Shachori, 44. The injured man was identified as Shachori's successor, Kaddar Theodor.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohamed Hassan el-Zayyat, visiting in London, announced his regret at the bombing.

In a statement Zayyat said: "I am sorry to hear this news."

"The sorrow inflicted on the family of the late agricultural counsellor at the Israeli Embassy is a human sorrow with which we sympathize. It is the same sorrow as inflicted upon the victims of the Lebanon raids last week as well

"These all are the bitter fruits of the policy of violence to which our area has been subjected since 1948," the statement said, referring to the founding of Israeli in 1948.

Britain's foreign secretary, Sir Alec Douglas-Home messaged Foreign Minister Abba Eban of Israel his "disgust" at the incident.

"We are disgusted at the underhanded act of terrorism," the British foreign secretary said in his message.

A Foreign Office spokesman said police reports disclosed the package had been mailed to the embassy from Amsterdam. It was not immediately

'Samaritan' bill Senate okays

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has approved legislation to compensate victims of crime and the "good Samaritans" who go to their rescue.

The amendment was attached to an omnibus crime bill which passed the Senate by a 74-0 vote Monday. The bill also would make it a federal crime to kill a policeman or fireman.

The bill now goes to a SenateHouse conference to resolve differences.

Arguing for adoption of his proposal, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said government for too long has neglected the victims of violent crimes and others injured while trying to aid them.

In an unusual parliamentary tactic, Mansfield's $15-million plan was passed twice—the first time on its merits and the second time attached to the House-passed omnibus crime measure.

Mansfield said he hoped by this maneuver to get his proposed compensation bill before House-Senate conferees for possible passage this Congress. The House has taken no action on the compensation plan.

The bill would pay victims for medical and burial expenses, loss of earnings and support, therapeutic costs and child-care expenses to enable one parent to work. Victims would not be repaid for property losses but intervenors—the so-called good Samaritans—would be.

To qualify, losses of at least $100 would have to be incurred. Compensation would be limited to $50,000.

The administration reportedly opposes the bill as being premature.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., said it would further burden the taxpayer who he said "is innocent in this, too."

Another amendment to the omnibus crime package would make it a federal crime to kill, injure or assault a policeman, fireman or judicial officer because of his official position.

The vote was 46 to 23 in favor of the proposal by Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa.

Another provision would establish a federally subsidized group-life insurance plan for state and local policemen, firemen and other public-safety officers. The cost was put at $22 million annually.

Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., also won passage of an amendment to extend until June 30, 1974, the Omnibus Crime Control Act of 1968, at an estimated cost of $1.74 billion for the extra year.

As passed by the House, the omnibus bill requires states to offer criminal offenders treatment for narcotics addiction and alcoholism in order to qualify for federal funds from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

Two other crime bills passed by the Senate Sept. 5 were wrapped into the omnibus bill. One would authorize a $50,000 payment to dependents of policemen, firemen and other law-enforcement officers slain on duty. The other would make available antitrust-type civil remedies to victims of theft and racketeering, allowing them, for instance, to sue for treble damages.

Grain exporters to testify on Soviet sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two of the nation's largest grain exporters, who allegedly received information that would allow them to make "windfall profits" in the sale of U.S. wheat to the Soviet Union, tell their side of the story today.

Clarence D. Palmby, former assistant secretary of agriculture and now vice president of the Continental Grain Co., and a representative of Cargill Grain Co. of Minneapolis, were to testify before a House agriculture subcommittee.

On Monday, officials of farm organizations accused the Agriculture Department of providing timely information to exporters, but not to farmers, concerning the huge grain sale.

"There is reason for strong suspicion that inside information was available to at least some wheat traders," said Weldon V. Barton, assistant legislative director of the National Farmers Union (NFU).

Charles L. Frazier of the National Farmers Organization (NFO) said farmers for months "were led to believe that grain prices would not improve for the 1972 crop."

"In contrast with their position," Frazier said, "those export companies who were closely in touch with the department had definite advantages."

Charles W. Pence, an official of the USDA's Export Marketing Service, told the subcommittee he called most of the grain exporters, including the six largest—Cook, Garnac, Continental, Cargill, Bunge, and Dreyfus—and told them the department's export payment policy on wheat would no longer reflect U.S. export price levels which were in effect previous to the Russian wheat sales.

Dr. Carroll G. Brunthaver, assistant agriculture secretary, defended the telephone calls and said the exporters were told that "we are no longer playing under the old rules."

Americans held in Uganda

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eight or nine Americans and about 50 British nationals were reported detained today in Uganda on grounds that the country "is in a war situation" with forces invading from Tanzania.

A diplomatic source in London said

the Americans being held in Kampala during Ugandan-Tanzanian fighting are Peace Corps workers, missionaries, and an Associated Press correspondent. The Britons detained include at least 10 newsmen.

Foreign Minister Wanume Kibedi told British High Commissioner Richard Slater in Kampala on Monday night the Britons are being held because of the fighting.

About 80 Europeans have been detained in Kampala after being unable to furnish proof of their identities. Diplomatic sources said 12 were released Monday and that all had been well-treated.

Several West German journalists have also been detained.

Uganda reported the invading forces have been routed in two days of fighting and were retreating to the border.

A Tanzanian government spokesman in Dar es Salaam said the Ugandans made another air attack on Bukoba northern Tanzania early today. Details were available.

The spokesman added that in Monday attack on Bukoba nine persons including three schoolgirls and a Roman Catholic nun, were killed while 20 others were seriously injured.

Radio Uganda has suggested that the invasion is being backed from guerrilla base near Bukoba, 30 miles south of the Uganda border.

The latest official news of the military situation in Uganda's southwest broadcast Monday said the invaders have been dislodged from five towns they had occupied, and were retreating toward the border.

Wisconsin lags in growth of per capita income

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Figures issued by the U. S. Commerce Department show Wisconsin's per capita personal income last year dropped from 24th to 27th among the states, the Public Expenditure Survey says.

The survey, a private research agency, said the figures modify a report in April that Wisconsin's personal income was 23rd.

national average on personal income rose from $3,933 to $4,156 in 1971.

Wisconsin's personal income average also rose, from $3,712 to $3,912, it said.

But Wisconsin's per capita average dropped from 94.3 per cent of the national average to 91.1 per cent, the group said.

Personal income averages last year in nearby states, the group said, were $4,775 in Illinois, $4,027 in Indiana, $4,430 in Michigan, $4,032 in Minnesota, and $3,877 in Iowa.

Helen Harn enters plea of innocent

OSHKOSH - The first degree murder trial of Helen Harn, 54, accused of shooting her ex-husband Mack at his Town of Vinland home on April 13, 1971, began Monday in Winnebago County Circuit Court.

Mrs. Harn, rural Nekoosa, changed her plea Monday before Judge Edmund P. Arpin from innocent by reason of insanity to innocent.

A jury of eight men and four women was selected and then, on a motion by the defense, were taken to view the scene of the shooting. Opening statements to introduce the jurors to the case were presented by William Carver, county district attorney who is prosecuting the case, and by Allan Cain, Appleton, the defense attorney.

Carver told the jury he intends to prove that Mrs. Harn intended to kill her husband and then did so. He asked the jury not to consider sympathy and compassion, but to listen closely and seek the ultimate truth.

Cain told the jury that "there will be no denial that this incident took place, but he said the defense would show that Mrs. Harn was provoked, and he asked the jury to be open minded about the degree of guilt. Cain said the case is not as simple as it was presented to the jury by the prosecution.

As the trial progresses, testimony will be given by some of Mrs. Harn's 11 children, all of whom were present in the courtroom, and by a witness to the shooting, Mrs. Sylvia Messing, 33, of Oshkosh.

Mrs. Harn is accused of shooting her ex-husband in the afternoon of April 13, at close range with a .22 caliber rifle. He died at Theda Clark Hospital shortly before 9 a.m. the next day of traumatic shock resulting from loss of blood due to an abdomen wound.

Har was the owner and operator Harn's Barn, a furniture store on South Commercial Street in Neenah. He obtained a Mexican divorce from his wife in 1969. That divorce was found valid by U.S. Circuit Judge William E. Crane in 1970. They were married in 1939.

According to court records, Mrs. Harn came to her ex-husband's small white frame home on U.S. 41 about a half mile north of CTH 46 and found him there with Mrs. Messing, a divorced woman and the mother of three children. Mrs. Harn entered the house with the rifle, and after some discussion she allegedly shot Harn.

He and Mrs. Messing then got Mrs. Harn out of the house, but she allegedly re-entered and fired one more shot, narrowly missing Mrs. Messing.

The first witness called by the prosecution was Linda Josephson, 1225 Doctors Court, Neenah, a Theda Clark hospital record keeper. She was called to enter as evidence the hospital record of Harn's treatment.

Also testifying was Dr. John McGloin, 410 E. Wisconsin St., Neenah. He testified that he performed surgery on Harn for about five hours following the shooting. The surgery was concluded at 10:20 p.m. The bullet was not removed, as X-rays showed it was not in a vital spot. The doctor said it appeared that Harn would survive, but that he went into shock about four hours later.

The jury will be sequestered in an area motel for the duration of the trial, and has been forbidden to watch television, listen to the radio or read newspapers unless edited by the bailiff.

The trial is expected to last at least through this week.

Warmer but wet too!

A stationary front which has caused storms along the southern Wisconsin-Illinois border now has become a warm front and will move into the Fox Valley through the next 24 hours bringing warm temperatures and thundersstorms, according to United States Weather Bureau forecasters at Green Bay.

The front should cause much warmer temperatures with the Fox Cities high likely to reach the mid 80's Wednesday. The low tonight may be near 62, according to forecasters. Increasing moisture will cause variable cloudiness and thunderstorms are likely throughout the area tonight and Wednesday.

Winds will shift slightly from southeast at 8-15 m.p.h. tonight to southwest at 10-18 m.p.h. Wednesday. There is a 50 per cent chance of rain tonight and a 50 per cent chance Wednesday.

Monday in Appleton the high temperature was 72, according to Wisconsin Michigan Power Company records. The low for the day was 55, according to the company. At 9:30 a.m. today the barometer was 30.40 and steady. Winds then were east-southeast at 10 m.p.h. and the humidity was 95 per cent. The dew point was 61 and there was .07 inch of rain.

Loan logjam keeps students from college

An outrage bordering on scandal is the chaos which has surrounded the Federal-state guaranteed student loan program this past summer.

So disorganized is the situation even at this very late date that in some states nearly two-thirds of the students who must have the guaranteed loans to go to college still have not obtained them - and some may not get the money for months.

This student loan logjam, in fact, could well be one key factor behind the high number of vacancies in many colleges from coast to coast. And the tragedy may be that uncounted numbers of students from middle-income families who should and want to go to college this year may have scrapped their plans altogether.

To suggest the totals which are involved, an enormous 300,000 student loan applications have been backed up while Washington bureaucrats have been sifting, sorting and generally failing miserably to fulfill their stated functions.

What happened?
First, Congress earlier this year enacted a batch of amendments to the guaranteed student loan program - which had expired in 1971 - switching the authority for determining the amount a student could get each year from the lenders of the money to the educational institution the student was attending. Congress also boosted the maximum loan amount from $1,500 a year to a new high of $2,500 a year.

Number reduced
Next, on July 1, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare issued its own set of regulations which, in effect, sharply reduced the numbers of students eligible for the loans - in bold contradiction to the intent of Congress when it voted the amendments.

Specifically, the department instantly disqualified hundreds of thousands of students for loans by slapping on a strict "needs" test - requiring, among other things, students' families in the $15,000 and under income brackets to count such liquid assets as the equity in their homes and life insurance policies toward the amounts they were expected to contribute toward the education of their children.

Finally, to end the confusion and start the money flowing, Congress passed emergency legislation late last month. Under this, most of the new amendments have suspended temporarily, and once again in effect - until next March - are the old rules. The key provisions: A student from a family with an adjusted yearly income of $15,000 per year or less may borrow at very favorable rates up to $1,500 per academic year, begin repaying nine to 12 months after graduation, take up to 10 years to pay. Interest subsidies are paid to the lending institutions to encourage them to extend the loans at the below-market rates.

What should you do, if you or your college student son or daughter are among those who have not obtained loans for the current or winter semester? Here is advice from the American Bankers Association in Washington, which includes among its members banks making more than 80 per cent of all the subsidized loans under this 1965 student loan program:
- Immediately apply for a loan - or reapply - at the lending institution where your family is known.

Financial aid officer

- If you still are turned away, immediately apply - or reapply - for guidance from your college financial aid officer. Many educational institutions maintain lines of credit with lenders in their own areas which a qualified student may tap.

- Also request information from your financial aid officer on other sources of funds - to help you through a crisis period caused by events far, far beyond your control.

What this report is all about is the untenable position of middle-income taxpayers who, in the words of Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., are "clobbered by taxes, cannot come up with the college tuition for their own sons and daughters" but who receive "the lowest priority for student financial aid."

And what this report is shouting between the lines is that America cannot possibly properly educate its young men and women unless there is a drastic overhaul in the way we handle the financing of higher education.

For college costs continue to soar; corporate financial support of higher education is not expanding at nearly the pace essential; in many ways, corporate support is actually shrinking; and it's painfully obvious that the "clobbered" middle-income taxpayer won't be able to manage it without far more liberal government help.

Priests lash IRA terror

BELFAST (AP) — Roman Catholic priests have called on the Irish Republican Army to end its bloody bombing campaign in Northern Ireland as the guerrillas claimed three more victims, two of them killed in bomb blasts.

In sporadic shooting across the province, British soldiers claimed they captured a sniper firing from near a Catholic convent in Lurgan and shot another in a Catholic stronghold in Belfast early today. One soldier was wounded.

Three bombs exploded, one killing a bar owner as he opened the door of his boobytrapped car on a road near the Irish Republican border late Monday night. Two men with him were wounded. Police said the men were collecting the bar owner's car near Crossmaglen. It had been stolen last week in Dundalk, a former IRA border stronghold in the Irish Republic.

The others who died Monday were a 53-year-old woman, wounded when the Imperial Hotel in north Belfast was bombed last Thursday, and a soldier wounded in Londonderry by a sniper Sunday.

Their deaths brought Ulster's three-year fatality toll to 564.

The priests said in Londonderry, the province's bomb-pitted second city, that Catholics there were weary of the "senseless bombing and shooting."

But the priests also condemned

British troops for "the army practice — coming with wearying repetition — of referring to all civilian victims of shooting as gunmen as justification of their actions."

They claimed that of nearly 30 civilians killed by army fire in Londonderry in the last 14 months, only three were known to have been armed. But, they stressed, all were described as gunmen by the army.

But the priests also condemned the gunmen who ambushed troops and "thereby draw fire on innocent bystanders."

Campaign is opened by Agnew

By WALTER R. MEARS — AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew is putting his 1972-model campaign on the road today to boast of the Republican record after renouncing the hard-line tactics that were his two years ago.

He begins with a tour that will take him to eight states in nine days. Aides said Agnew probably will be campaigning four days a week until the Nov. 7 election.

But he apparently is not taking along the dictionary that gave him such epithets as "troglodytic leftists" and "vicars of vacillation" to hurl at Democrats in the 1970 campaign. And gone are the "radical liberals" who used to make up his political demonology. Agnew has said he regrets using that phrase, the keynote of his 1970 campaign, because it was misunderstood.

Obviously, neither the new Agnew campaign style nor the old was designed by the vice president without the concurrence and instruction of his boss, President Nixon.

As Agnew put it himself, the vice president is "the president's man." He is also the president's campaigner, and a low-key approach fits the current Nixon game plan.

It also casts Agnew in an image far more likely than that of 1970 to help him in any campaign for presidential nomination four years hence.

After his renomination in Miami Beach, Agnew said he would campaign totally on the issues this year, and not as a partisan "cutting edge."

He said then that he was distressed at "the generalized identity that I received" in the campaigns of 1968 and 1970, and would like to obliterate that.

Now, after nearly a month for the interment of the old campaign image, Agnew is heading for Minneapolis, St. Louis, Columbus, Ohio, Nashville and Chattanooga, Tenn., Winston-Salem, N.C., and Louisville, Ky. That takes him through Saturday. Stops in Texas and Illinois are scheduled next week.

Six of those states have Senate contests this year, and Agnew is expected to devote increasing attention to boosting Republican congressional campaigners as the election draws closer.

In a preview of what he said will be his new campaign style, Agnew went to Las Vegas a week ago to tell a union meeting the administration is on the right road toward solving the unemployment problem.

He said the economic proposals of "a desperate candidate"—which meant Sen. George McGovern—should not change that course.

Explaining his campaign plans, Agnew said in Miami Beach that in 1970 it was "essential for me to be a cutting edge, so to speak, cutting through the fog of all the Democrats who were running to a me-too position with the President's policies. That problem does not exist in 1972."

Russian-born actor Akim Tamiroff, 72, died Sunday at his home in Palm Springs, Calif. Tamiroff had performed in the United States since 1923, but felt his career was aided because he never lost his heavy Russian accent.

Mitchell says she was manhandled by a man who has since been promoted to head the Nixon campaign security forces.

"Well, I don't know anything about what happened in her room," Mrs. Nixon said regarding Mrs. Mitchell's reports of alleged efforts to restrain her.

"I only know what I read in the papers."

'Zero taxes'

R. Sargent Shriver, Democratic vice presidential hopeful, gestures to indicate a "big zero" as he claimed there are "too many who are paying zero taxes" in the United States today. He was speaking in Philadelphia on Monday. Earlier Shriver had estimated his worth at $100,000, making him the least monied of the four presidential and vice presidential candidates. (AP Wirephoto)

McGovern endorses tax credit in schooling

CHICAGO (AP) — After a day of campaign foulups that reportedly left him fuming, Sen. George McGovern today endorsed the idea of tax credits for parents of students in private and parochial schools.

The move was seen mainly as a friendly gesture toward millions of Roman Catholic voters concentrated in the large states which the Democratic presidential nominee feels are crucial for his bid for the White House.

McGovern said he endorsed the "tax credit-approach" without proposing any specific plan.

Previously McGovern had said he was exploring ways to aid parochial schools without violating the U.S. Constitution's prohibition against mingling church and government.

McGovern released his statement on parochial school-aid before heading into a closed-door meeting with Chicago labor leaders. He also was to appear at a Catholic technical high school in a predominantly white, working class neighborhood in the northwest part of the city.

Monday, McGovern put in a 17-hour day on the campaign trail in West Virginia coal country. Ohio's industrial southwest and the rural southern tip of Illinois. But the nominee spent barely five hours of that time campaigning.

The rest of the time was spent fighting twisting mountain roads and city traffic jams, so that by late afternoon a highly placed travelling staffer was muttering "dumb! dumb-dumb!"

McGovern was described as extremely irritated after arriving in Cincinnati two hours behind schedule and so late that his interviews with local television newsmen missed the afternoon broadcasts. One station cancelled its interview altogether.

He got himself back on schedule by forfeiting a couple of hours of personal time he had planned in Cincinnati. His day perked up when he addressed an applauding, cheering airport crowd, estimated by local authorities at between 2,000 and 4,000, at Carbondale, Ill., site of the 23,000-student campus of Southern Illinois University.

But despite the warm reception, local observers said McGovern could have done better if he had waited two days until the start of classes at SIU.

And, as if to add insult to the day's frustrations, a St. Louis television newsman mousetrapped McGovern into an unintended snub of Edward L. Dowd, the Democratic candidate for governor of Missouri.

"Do you know the name Ed Dowd?" the interviewer asked. "Sort of vaguely," replied a puzzled McGovern. Then the interviewer explained who Dowd was. "If he's a Democrat, then I endorse him," said McGovern, quickly recovering.

McGovern spent the night in Chicago

Pat Nixon faces grilling at start of campaign trip

CHICAGO (AP) — Pat Nixon fielded tough questions on the Vietnam war, the Watergate bugging, Martha Mitchell and abortion on her first day of a week-long cross country campaign trip.

Then, she headed for the calm wilderness of Yellowstone National Park today to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the designation of that unique natural setting of volcanic geysers and hot springs as a park.

Mrs. Nixon is spanning the country with stops in seven states in her most ambitious solo campaign swing. Chicago police stopped city traffic so she could make her motorcade rounds.

She stopped in to congratulate volunteers who were working for her husband's reelection at campaign headquarters in Chicago's "Magnificent Mile" downtown area.

They promised her "Chicago for Nixon in '72."

With Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, Mrs. Nixon went to ceremonies for 236 newly naturalized American citizens, who will have their first vote this November.

At an afternoon "press coffee," Mrs. Nixon faced some of the hardest questioning she has had as First Lady. She made these points:

—She would "be willing to die to save freedom" for 17 million South Vietnamese people "who are now having aggression against them with the idea of taking away their freedom and their country."

—The bugging of Democratic national headquarters at the Watergate complex in Washington won't hurt Nixon's chance for re-election — "I think it's blown completely out of proportion. I think the (GOP campaign) chairman answered all the questions on it." She said the people know that "he (Nixon) has no part of it."

—She opposes "on demand" abortion; it is a personal matter and one to be left to the states to decide.

Mrs. Nixon was asked if it bothered her that former Cabinet wife Martha
